STORM BREWS ON RECOVERY PLAN

Swaney Granted Parole, to Go Free Sept. 15

BOARD OKAYS RELEASE OF MANSFIELDER

PRISON FARM INMATE NOW

Convicted Extortionist Will Have Served 16 Months of 1 to 5 Year Sentence.

Granted a parole today by the state parole board, Roy F. Swaney, former Mansfield automobile dealer and cafe proprietor, will walk out of the London prison farm next Sept. 15, a free man, after serving more than 16 months of a one to five year sentence for blackmail.

Convicted in Richland county common pleas court last April 19 after one of the most sensational trials in the county in recent years, Swaney was sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary. He entered the prison May 5 and later was transferred to the London prison farm.

Found Guilty of Extortion.

Arrested in Toledo March 27, 1937, Swaney was found guilty here of extorting money from Mansfield club operators for alleged "protection" from gambling raids by police. The specific case which led to his conviction involved the extortion of $20.45 from Carl Willis, proprietor of the former Bank cafe.

County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott said today he had not been informed of the parole, and added that he "wouldn't be interested in protesting against Swaney's release in September."

"He will have served more than a year of his sentence, and if the parole board considers his release timely, I have no complaint to make," Marriott said.

Board In Session Here.

The parole board, which is in session today at the Mansfield reformatory, granted 58 paroles, two conditional releases and 10 restorations to parole to inmates of the prison farm.

This Darn Story's Darn Full of Darns, Darn It, Anyway!

DETROIT — (INS) — Gabel Sabo, 19, had this novel defense to offer today when answering a charge of disturbing the peace by arguing loudly with a relative:

"Why the darn fool wouldn't let me take the darn car out of the darn garage and I am paying for the darn car. Some darn guy came along and poked his darn nose in. Then a darn cop came and took me to the darn station. Darn it."

Recorder's Judge Thomas N. Cotter, in the swing of things, replied:

"Well, this darn court will adjourn this darn case to the darn probation department to investigate this darn matter."

The darn probation department must have a report by April 20. If Sabo doesn't furnish $500 bond he'll be in the darn jail until then.

KILLED BY POWER LINE

LORAIN — (INS) — Funeral services were planned today for Enrico Pescone, 50, father of 10 children, electrocuted when the boom of a crane against which he was leaning came in contact with a high tension wire carrying 23,000 volts.

Funny how some people make money! Easter bunnies and colored eggs and chicks plus Want Ads multiply into spring "money". EXTRA dollars from a pleasant hobby gives pleasure to many. Play the hunch and sell that hutch of does and bucks for extra "bucks." Want Ads are the "contact".

City to Get 'Face Lifted' During May

Styert Sets Opening of Annual Clean-up Drive for May 2.

Mansfield is going to get its annual "face-lifting" and spring clean-up the first two weeks of May, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert announced today.

Along with the campaign in which the city will haul away the winter's accumulation of rubbish, Styert urged the cooperation of the entire community in the drive to clean-up the city.

He pointed out that not only should cellers and attics be cleaned to eliminate fire hazards, but called upon property owners to paint up and fix up.

* * *

"I would like to urge on the property owners doing something besides cleaning the home," Styert said, "such as trimming trees and painting homes and such other cleaning that will tend to beautify the city."

He added that city trucks will begin the collection of rubbish on May 2, but warned that everything must be placed in containers at the curb. The collection will cover the entire city, one ward at a time. The pick-up schedule has not been worked out yet, but it will be announced later, the director said. It is expected that three trucks working with full crews of men will be able to complete one ward in two days.

"Ashes, however, will not be picked up by the trucks," Styert said. He explained that the city offers an ash collection service without charge for garbage collection customers who have had the service more than one year.

WOMAN HUNTED IN MURDER CASE

She's Believed to Be Key Figure In Mutilation Slaying of Ex-Teacher.

MARION, Ill. — (INS) — An unnamed woman was hunted today as a key figure in the mutilation murder of Arno Bratten, 59, former high school principal here.

Sheriff Zollie Carter declared the woman's identity is known, and that her arrest as well as two or three others involved in the case is expected soon.

With the revelation yesterday that Bratten had been emasculated before he was thrown into a creek to die, authorities declared they were certain revenge had been th motive for the killing rather than robbery as supposed at first.

Bratten's body was found last Wednesday. A woman's diamond ring, which none of his family recognized, was on his finger.

CHINA DENIES

Scoffs at Rumors Kai-Shek Was Killed in Air Raid.

HANKOW — (INS) — Tokyo rumors that Chinese Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek and T. V. Soong, chairman of the Bank of China, had been killed or were missing as a result of a Japanese air raid on Changsha were officially denied today.

Chiang was in Hankow Sunday when the raid occurred, Chinese authorities said, while Soong was in Hong Kong.

CHALIAPIN DIES

Russian Basso Stricken In Paris By Kidney Ailment.

Death resulted from a kidney ailment which brought on anemia, against which blood transfusion was unavailing. Death came in his Paris apartment, his home in exile.

PAPER'S FIRE LOSS $15,000

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Loss by fire in the editorial rooms of the Ohio State Journal was estimated at about $15,000 today. Four persons were overcome by smoke, but were recovering. The blaze broke out when a pile of tracing celluloid exploded.

URGES CITY TO SET UP HOME FOR T. B. CASES

Health Commissioner Suggests Convalescent Institution In Annual Report.

STRESSES NEED FOR CARE

Number Examined at Clinics Doubled; Increase in Birth, Death Rates Listed.

The establishment of a convalescent home for tuberculosis patients along with an additional sanitary office were the major recommendations made in the annual report of the health department submitted to Mayor Claude M. Hunter today by City-County Health Commissioner Dr. Roy C. Rehder.

"Ways and means of hospitalizing tuberculosis patients should be seriously considered in order that others not afflicted may be spared the necessity of contact," Dr. Rehder said in the report, and that those afflicted may receive proper care and attention needed for recovery."

Says It's Time for Program.

Dr. Rehder explained that the time was near at hand when the county must enter upon some program whereby tuberculosis care will be provided so that well balanced control of the disease might be put into operation.

He pointed out that too few homes offer the opportunity for proper isolation and care of tuberculosis patients and with sanitarium costs so great that the county is able to provide only a limited number of beds, a convalescent home could be established here at a savings to the county.

The report showed that nearly twice as many persons were examined in the tuberculosis diagnostic clinics in Mansfield last year as there were in 1936. In 1937 the clinics handled a total of 145 cases while the number diagnosed in 1936 was 85, Dr. Rehder said. Of the total number who went through the clinics last year, there were 59 positive cases, of which 32 were not in a communicable stage, while the other 27 suspects were in an advanced stage of the disease.

In order to enable the health department to prevent the lowering of the standard services that will inevitably occur with the continued growth of the city and expansion of services of the department, Dr. Rehder recommended that consideration to the addition to the department of another sanitary officer.

The report also showed an increase in both the birth and death rate for the city during the past year. The death rate, which Dr. Rehder said was still far below the national figure, was 12.1 per thousand population in 1937 as compared with the 10.7 per thou-

FETE FORDS

DETROIT — (AP) — Seven hundred guests have been invited to tonight's celebration of the golden wedding anniversary of Henry Ford and Clara Bryant, the woman who believed in him when he was a $35 a month mechanic tinkering with gasoline engines.

The party will be held in the reproduction of Independence hall in Greenfield village, the vast Ford project devoted to early Americana.

Open Season For Queens

Jeanne Eley

Gwen Stith

This seems to be the open season for queens. At the left is Gwen Stith who is known as California's "queen of queens" because she is always being elected queen of something or other. At present she is a candidate and a leading one for the title of queen of all of California's golden-haired girls. At the right is Jeanne Eley, who is queen of the tulip festival held each year at Washington, N. C. She's as attractive as the tulips, isn't she?

Two 'Greetings' Assure Ondov of a Happy Easter

Fellow Students to Present Him $350 Check, Surgeon Finds He's Making Rapid Progress.

Even though Michael Ondov is overlooked by the Easter bunny Sunday, it's going to be a pretty nice holiday after all, for he's already had two "greetings" that will keep his spirits up for some time.

Ondov, a student of Hamma Divinity school at Wittenberg, who has lain paralyzed in General hospital since Nov. 5 as the result of an auto accident near here, will be presented with a check for $350 from his fellow students the latter part of the week, James Keyser, president of the student body, said today.

This sum represents the gifts of students at Hamma and Wittenberg, and is in addition to the $200 they raised for him at Christmas. It will bring the present Ondov fund to $1,565, according to Rev. Herman L. Gilbert, an alumnus of Hamma school and pastor of St. Paul Lutheran church, who is serving as treasurer of the fund.

Recovering Rapidly.

The other "greeting" that has brought considerable happiness to Ondov was from the Columbus surgeon who performed a delicate spinal operation on Ondov four

TRAIL 'COLDER'

Suspect In Double Slaying, Blond Aid, Elude Police.

LAREDO, Tex. — (UP) — The trail of a man and his blond woman companion, wanted for questioning in the murders of Mrs. Weston G. Frome and her daughter, Nancy, grew cold today.

The black automobile that the couple has been driving was seen in front of a Laredo grocery store at 8 a. m. yesterday. The car was driven away unnoticed. Texas Rangers and local authorities have been unable to find a trace of it or its occupants since.

The Frome women, who lived at Berkeley, Calif., were beaten and shot to death near Van Horn, Tex., March 30. Their luggage and part of their jewelry had been stolen.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Harry Brennan, Zanesville, reported to police today that his pocket was picked of $1,500 in cash while he was sitting in a lunchroom here last night.

Almost 'Broke', Coogan Files $4,000,000 Suit

'WON'T GET A CENT'

Quotes Parent as Saying Money Belongs to Her and Step-Father.

(By Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES — Jackie Coogan, "The Kid" who transformed rags into millions, is almost in rags again, he charged in a $4,000,000 suit against his mother and stepfather today.

Coogan, now 22 and recently married to Actress Betty Grable, filed his suit yesterday, charging his mother and her second husband, Arthur Bernstein, withheld his earnings as a child film star. He quoted his mother as having told him:

'Mine and Arthur's.'

"You haven't got a cent. There never has been a cent belonging to you. It's all mine and Arthur's, and so far as we are concerned you never will get a cent."

Charles J. Katz, counsel for Bernstein, characterized Coogan's charges as absurd.

"The young man has received everything he is entitled to, and more," he said. "His mother was entitled to all his earnings up to the time he became of age."

Katz also said Coogan's estimate of his screen earnings was much too high.

Mrs. Bernstein told an interviewer she was "deeply hurt" by her son's action.

"I am sure he has been misguided by outside influences," she said. "He says he has nothing and that I refused to give him any part of the estate. No promises ever were made to give him anything."

Makes Gambling Charge.

Coogan's complaint said he believes Bernstein has dissipated considerable of his money by playing the horse races.

He reviewed his movie career, beginning in 1919 with Charlie Chaplin, when he played a bobbed-haired little waif.

From "The Kid" and 17 hit pictures that followed, Coogan said, all he received was an $800 automobile, a $6.25 weekly allowance, and a $7,000 insurance policy.

Bernstein was financial adviser to Jackie's father, who was killed in an auto accident in 1935. He continued as administrator of Jackie's property and in 1936 married Jackie's mother.

MEETS LEADERS

Metcalf Ponders Decision to Run for Attorney General.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — State Sen. Verner E. Metcalf, of Marietta, probably will become a candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general is conferences with party leaders during the next few days are encouraging to him, it was learned today.

Metcalf visited the office he maintains here as senate minority leader yesterday and although he readily admitted that he was seriously considering entering the primary contest, he declined to commit himself for the time being.

It was understood, however, that he probably would issue a definite statement on the matter shortly and that it might be a formal declaration of candidacy.

DAVEY CALLED

Goes Before Grand Jury Wednesday In Bradley Probe.

FACES DEATH CHARGE

Nazis Indict Him

The Nazi campaign against foes continues with the latest target being Archduke Otto of Hapsburg, the pretender to the once proud Austrian throne. According to reports from Vienna, Otto has been indicted for high treason and a warrant issued for his "extradition." Under German law high treason is punishable by death. Otto consequently would be liable to arrest and trial for his life if he ever appeared on Gedman territory, which is not likely now.

CROWD AT FIRST COOKING CLASS

1,000 Women Attend Opening Session of News-Journal School in Theater.

All streets led to the Ohio theater this morning where almost a thousand women and a fair sprinkling of men attended the opening of The News-Journal's annual cooking school.

Before the doors opened at 9 a. m. women were waiting to get in and get seats down near the stage. Within a half hour, the lower auditorium was well filled.

Attractive girls in gay print dresses were at the door to present guests with recipe booklets, a clever revolving "menu aid" and literature pertaining to the cooking school.

The stage and lobby are more attractive than ever this year. The kind of kitchen that women dream about is set up on the stage, while at one side is a model dining room, completely equipped, the

VIENNA SUICIDE

Minister In Last Schuschnigg Cabinet Ends Own Life.

BERLIN — (UP) — Gen. Wilhelm Zehner, war minister in the last cabinet of Kurt Schuschnigg, and former commander in chief of the Austrian army, killed himself at his Vienna home today, according to inspired information made available to foreign correspondents here.

It was added that the reason for Zehner's suicide was not known. He was a member of the court which sentenced Nazis to death after the Nazi putsch of 1934.

GARNER FIGHTS NEW SPENDING, CAPITAL HEARS

New Deal Foes Jubilant as Word of Vice President's Opposition Spreads.

ROOSEVELT MAPS 'CHAT'

Radio Address Thursday to Follow Special Message on Business Aid.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — A major congressional struggle was developing today over President Roosevelt's huge business recovery program, amid reports that Vice President Garner had taken a firm stand against new government spending.

Announcement that Mr. Roosevelt intended to explain his program in a "fireside chat"—the first since last November — led many observers to believe that he was determined to marshal popular support against his opposition in the senate and house.

Plans Special Message.

Stephen T. Early, White House press secretary, said the radio address probably would be delivered Thursday night following dispatch to congress of a message on relief and the general economic situation.

The only possibility of delay was that the president might not complete his conferences with administration officials and congressional leaders in time to finish the message by Thursday noon.

Conservative opposition to renewed heavy spending gained momentum in both senate and house from the reports that Vice President Garner was opposing further pump-priming. Senators close to Garner said he had expressed his views in no uncertain terms at a White House conference yesterday.

Anti-administration senators received the reports with jubilation. They frankly counted on Garner's popularity in both senate and house to win considerable support to the conservative cause.

Some quickly recalled the part the stocky vice-president played in the court bill fight last year. Although Garner never disclosed his personal views on the legislation, he suddenly went to Texas on a summer fishing trip and remained until the death of Senator Robinson of Arkansas brought demands for his return.

A few days after his arrival he visited opposition leaders and negotiated peace terms. The senate quickly shelved the bill.

Against Pump Priming.

Garner long has been an economy advocate, a fact which many legislators credited with occasioning his stand against pump-priming expenditures.

Advocates of government spending, however, won new support

VOTES TODAY

(Pictures on Page 17)

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — Illinois votes today in primaries that usher in a crucial election year in which Republicans will seek to overturn Democratic control of congress and lay the groundwork for victory in the 1940 presidential election.

The first of a series of state primaries, today's voting held little of national significance. The principal question to be answered by the voters was which of two Democratic machines would control the state Democratic party.

The machine headed by Mayor Edward J. Kelly and Patrick A. Nash, national committeeman, has controlled Chicago for five years. Today it faced the opposition of a "downstate" machine led by Gov. Henry Horner and State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney.

What Do You Know About Northwest Territory? Series to Give Answers

First Article on Historic Ordinance Appears In News-Journal Today.

On May 2, a twentieth century party of pioneers will come to Mansfield, to show how the Northwest Territory—part of which is now the state of Ohio—was settled.

The occasion is the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Northwest Ordinance, and the settling of the Northwest Territory.

Mansfield itself was not settled by the expedition that came first to the Northwest Territory. Yet had it not been for the Northwest Territory pioneers, there might have been no Mansfield.

What was the Northwest Ordinance? What was the Northwest Territory? How did it happen that anyone selected it specifically for settlement?

These questions and many others will be answered in a series of nine articles which will appear three times a week in The News-Journal, beginning today. They have been prepared for The News-Journal by members of a committee assisting in arranging for Mansfield's observance of the Northwest Territory celebration on May 2.

Would you be surprised to know that the Northwest Ordinance was signed before the national constitution—and that much of the theory of government and religious and civil liberty adopted in the Northwest Ordinance was later incorporated in the Constitution. Well, it's so.

That incident, and others concerning the circumstances that led up to the settlement that later became Ohio and several other of the country's greatest states, is related in this series of articles.

RE-ELECT OFFICERS OF D. A. R.; HEAR PAPER

Mrs. Cutter Continues to Head Group; Accept New Member; Plan Northwest Territory Celebration During Business Meeting.

FOLLOWING the announcement of the nomination of last year's officers for a second term by the nominating committee of the Mary Washington chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, the old officers were re-elected and two additions were made yesterday. The officers are Mrs. Weston Cutter, regent; Mrs. R. G. Averill, vice-regent; Mrs. G. J. Searle, secretary; Mrs. David N. Feiser, treasurer; Mrs. H. H. Sanford, registrar; Mrs. George Buchan, assistant registrar; Mrs. Clifford G. Hillier, historian; and Miss Mary Ellen Runyan, chaplain.

Members of the committee were Mrs. Charles Workman, Mrs. Fred Bristor and Mrs. Edward Dann. An amendment committee was named which included Mrs. Averill, Mrs. E. R. Hartman and Mrs. George Anson.

Mrs. David Roller was accepted as a new member and Mrs. Dann was named chairman of the welcoming committee for the chapter's participation in the Northwest Territory celebration May 2.

An invitation to a celebration tea was received by the chapter from the Sally DeForest chapter, Norwalk. The affair will be April 29. Reports on the state convention which was held in March at Columbus were given by Mrs. Cutter, Mrs. E. J. Gilbert and Mrs. Averill.

The program, which preceded the business meeting, was opened by the devotions given by Miss Runyan. Mrs. O. W. Meihack, guest of the club, presented a paper on "Old Silver." Her talk was illustrated with an exhibit of various pieces among which was a spoon made by Paul Revere and some pieces made from silver coins.

Mrs. Meihack told of the important English silversmiths, the guild mark, hall and trade marks which help to identify old and rare pieces.

The chapter was entertained at a dessert-luncheon at the home of Mrs. Avery Hand, 37 Sturges avenue. Mrs. Hand was assisted by Mrs. Feiser, Mrs. Glenn M. Hoover, Mrs. Charles Jelliff and Mrs. Buchan. Mrs. Workman and Mrs. Searle presided at the table at which 26 members were served. The table was decorated with a spring bouquet in yellow, white and lavender which included jonquills and iris.

CHANGE CLUB NAME.

The Penguin club, formerly the Rosalie club, met yesterday with Mrs. Raymond Metcalf, Lucas road, for a business meeting and contests. There were 10 members and two guests, Miss Norma Farshler and Mrs. Richards, present. Mrs. Grace Thompson won the contest prize. The table was decorated with an Easter color scheme. The next meeting will be May 9 at the home of Mrs. Helen Price, Oak road.

* * *

Leroy Wittemire, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Wittemire, 19 Columbia avenue; Rex Larson, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Larson, Bigelow road; Richard Grudier, son of Mrs. Helen Grudier, 390 Marion avenue, and Richard Olin, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Olin, Brinkerhoff avenue, all students at Kenyon college, Gambier, are arriving home tomorrow to spend spring vacation.

Crafton Talks On Success At Meet

G. F. Ewing served as chairman last night when members of the Progressor's club met in the Chamber of Commerce clubrooms. C. M. Crafton, guest speaker, talked on "Success." His subject was J. C. Penney.

He told how this great merchant had been a sickly poor boy, but with a will to succeed had risen from the owner of a small store to the ownership of 1,600 stores all over the country. A guest was Robert Freeman. New members taken into the club were Harold and Catherine Seifert.

Miss Helen Hartman was named program chairman for the next meeting which will be April 25 in the clubrooms. Felix Horn will review Dale Carnegie's "How to Win Friends and Influence People." The sales study will be continued.

John Correll Talks at Meeting of Tent No. 40

John Correll spoke on the Northwest Territory celebration last night at the regular meeting of the Mary B. Mitchell Tent No. 40, Daughters of Union Veterans of Civil War, presided over by Mrs. Ella McHugh. Full ritualistic work was conducted and committee reports were made when the members gathered in Memorial hall.

The organization agreed to participate in the celebration parade May 2. The annual inspection was announced for April 25 at the hall. There will be a dinner at the Evergreens preceding the meeting. The tent is sponsoring a rummage sale at 24 East Third street Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of this week.

COUNTY LOSES FOUR-YEAR-OLD COURT BATTLE

Appeals Judges Uphold $1,500 Judgment In Personal Damage Case.

Richland county commissioners today had lost a four-year court battle in a personal damage suit, when the Fifth district court of appeals affirmed a $1,500 judgment returned against them in common pleas court for injuries suffered by the late Mrs. Nora Elizabeth Olds of Lexington in 1933.

Mrs. Olds, who died after the suit was started, sought $15,000 damages after an automobile she was driving left the road and turned over in a ditch near her home. She accused the county of negligence in permitting the road to be rough. The action was continued after her death by her husband, Harry Olds.

New Trial Ordered.

Heard twice in common pleas court here, the suit was first decided in favor of the commissioners. The state supreme court, however, ordered a new trial, and last fall a jury awarded Olds $1,500 damages.

The county appealed and the case was argued before the appeals court on March 29 at Delaware. The court instructed Richland county common pleas court to carry out the previous judgment.

Prosecuting Attorney Glenn W. Marriott and Atty. J. V. Will represented the county in the suit, and Attys. Lewis Brucker and H. M. Rust were counsel for the plaintiff.

WEDS 5 YEARS LATE

WATSONVILLE, Cal. — (U.P.) — California law requires that before a marriage license is issued the parties must give a three days' notice of their intention to wed but unfortunately does not specify when the wedding must take place. So, Petra Ramirez and Jesus Sanchez, Mexicans, were married here on a license issued five years ago.

Flowers By Kafer To Grace Tables At Cooking School

Flowers as table decorations play so important a part in present day entertaining that many a hostess considers her flowers fully as important as her entree or dessert and because of this table decorations will be featured every day at the Food Fashion Revue which opened today at the Ohio theater.

Charles Kafer, proprietor of Kafer's Flowers, 41 North Mulberry street will work out original and novel table decorations each of the four days of the cooking school. At least two of them will be for those all important occasions—silver and golden wedding anniversary tables.

Kafer, who studies the trends and fashions in flowers as religiously as designers study dress styles, combines originality with prescribed floral styles. Each occasion, he believes demands individual touches.

For his table decorations this week he will use spring and Easter flowers — sweet peas, jonquils, snapdragons, tulips and roses.

The lobby display which was designed and created by Kafer, will remain through the cooking school and until after Easter in the inner lobby of the Ohio theater. It is a church scene with an Easter theme, worked out in yellow, blue and silver.

WPA JOB SET

Codifying of Shelby City Records Begins Thursday.

A Shelby city records project, designed to revise and codify city ordinances and compile complete office and field records of all municipal departments will open Thursday under the supervision of the Works Progress administration.

A force of eight persons will start to work on the project Thursday and later eight additional persons will be added.

The project will employ a few experienced persons from Mansfield to train Shelby workers until they become familiar with the work, WPA officials said.

The program is designed to employ 16 persons for a period of six months. Total expenditures on the project will be $5,500, the city's share set at $550.

It's Odd

But It's Science.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. — (AP) — They are boiling rocks at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Not in hot water. The rocks themselves melt and boil.

The rock-brew has been developed by Dr. R. D. Evans and Clark Goodman to obtain helium. The helium is not for airships or medicinal use. Ordinary rocks have too little helium for that—about a pint of gas to a ton of rock.

Tech is boiling rocks to find out how many millions or billions of years since the rock solidified from a liquid. Perhaps the liquid came up from a volcano—perhaps it was the original molten stuff that made earth, provided the world was born from sun or star.

Helium tells the age of rocks because it forms in them at a uniform rate. Its formation is as even as the moving hand of a clock. This helium comes from the slight amounts of radio-active minerals scattered through most, or perhaps all rocks.

Lead is another product of this disintegration and it can be used to read the age of rocks.

IN SCHOOL, TOO

Girdles, Foundation Garments to Be on Display.

Girdles and foundation garments —how can they fit into the pattern of a cooking school?

Miss Ruth Chambers, who conducts the News-Journal's annual food school this week, has the answer. "The time is past," she said, "When women are willing to look like something the kitty dragged in while they do their housework. Women used to wear kid curlers and drab looking house dresses when they started the day's work. And whenever there was a knock at the door they had to hide.

"But not any more. The modern, up-to-date housewife keeps herself as smart and trim on wash day as she does any other time. Her figure has an all-day trimness that is enhanced with colorful and attractive cotton frocks.

Le Gant girdles and foundation garments are made for all occasions, and their sheer "Veil of Youth" is particularly acceptable for warm, summer wear. They are made with a two way stretch sides and a one way stretch back and front.

Eye Strain Among Housewives Can Be Quickly Remedied

Headaches and eye strain are two of the housewife's most common complaints, according to Miss Ruth Chambers who directs The News-Journal cooking school at the Ohio theater this week.

Many women fail to realize that the eyes play an important part in home making. Faulty vision may bring on headaches and eye strain and other physical discomforts which undermine energy.

Miss Chambers will explain the importance of watching the eyes, having regular examinations to detect the necessity of glasses or new lenses.

Dr. M. D. Harnly, optometrist, 83 North Main street, who is cooperating on the cooking school, is a graduate of Wittenberg college and of the optical college of Ohio State university. During his 13 years of practice he has made glasses for approximately 10,000 patients in Mansfield, Akron, and Columbus. He owns and operates the most modern equipment obtainable; and is prepared to replace broken lenses at a minimum of time and cost. He also carries a large assortment of styles in frames.

NEWEST SILVER

Rogers and Company to Show Latest In Table Service.

No matter how excellent your meals are, how tasty your sauces, or how delectable your desserts you always feel that something is missing if your dinners are served with improper or inadequate silver.

Women attending the Food Fashion Revue at the Ohio theater are invited to pause in the lobby to examine the Rogers silver being displayed there by the Rogers & Co., North Main street.

All the silverware being used by Miss Ruth Chambers, demonstrator, will be furnished by that company. A bridal gift chest is being featured this week and will be displayed at the show. It includes 50 pieces for the price of 40.

Rogers company trade mark has been a guarantee of servicability and beauty in silver for years.

Westbrook Flour To Be Used For Cooking School

Westbrook flour milled in Mansfield by the Lantz Milling company, was chosen by Miss Ruth Chambers, home economist and demonstrator at The News-Journal Food Fashion Revue, for demonstrations at the four sessions of the school at the Ohio theater which opened today.

In selecting Westbrook flour, Miss Chambers has chosen a flour milled from the highest quality Ohio wheat, and one that has been on the market in northern Ohio for more than 15 years.

The Mansfield housewife who uses this flour will find that it is excellent for the baking of bread, pies, rolls, cookies and other pastries.

The Lantz Milling company, millers of Westbrook flour are also the makers of Westbrook cake flour, which according to milling statistics, is the highest quality cake flour now being sold in the United States.

Westbrook pastry flour and Westbrook cake flour are distributed by the Tracy and Avery company, wholesale grocers.

OLD DWELLINGS RETURN INCOME AS APARTMENTS

Conversion of Outmoded Properties Made Possible by Federal Housing Act.

Out-modeled residence properties, still structurally sound but no longer in demand by reason of excessive size, dated architecture, or neighborhood changes, may be converted into revenue-producing flats and apartments with funds available under the property improvement credit plan of the Federal Housing administration

Many residential landmarks are today but specters of past magnificence. Deserted, falling into dilapidation, unwanted by the descendants of the original owner. These properties cannot be rented for homes in their present condition and serve only to gather unwanted taxes for the owners. Many have been demolished to ease the tax burden or with the hope of renting the vacant lot for some purpose.

Placed On Paying Basis.

By the expenditure of a reasonable amount for modernization many old homes may be remodeled into several small apartment units and placed on an income basis that will justify the expenditure.

The provisions of the National Housing act as amended permit the insurance of modernization loans up to $10,000 on a single property. Repayments are made in equal monthly installments over a period of as long as five years and thirty-two days. Charges for this credit are reasonable. The Federal Housing administration insures the loans, and the funds are made available by private lending institutions, including banks, building and loan associations, finance companies, and like agencies

Extensive alterations necessary to remodel a dwelling for apartment purposes do not always require the services of an architect, but the scope of the work makes it desirable. Among the improvements eligible to be financed are Installation of new heating, wiring, and plumbing units and systems; redivision of floor space, painting and papering, and any other improvements that become an integral part of the building.

The brick work may be pointed up, roof repaired, or a new roof put on; porches removed, walkways and drives built, entrances cut, and the building painted.

PLUMBING FOR $6,000 HOUSE

Quality and Beauty Need Not Be Sacrificed In Building Small Home.

The builder of a $6,000 house under the government plan need not sacrifice quality and beauty in the plumbing equipment, the Plumbing and Heating Industries bureau explains.

Recent improvements in the design of plumbing fixtures make it possible for the builder who of necessity must observe the strictest economy to have a distinctive and colorful bathroom, a compact and attractive kitchen sink, and efficient laundry equipment.

Special space-saving plumbing fixtures incorporating the maximum utility in the minimum space are available for the house in the $6,000 price range, the bureau says.

Small lavatories, only 19 inches wide and 17 inches deep, with a built-in shelf for toilet articles and attached towel bars, provide a large amount of usable space. The combination faucet and drain control is placed in the center thus adding further to the practical utility of the fixture.

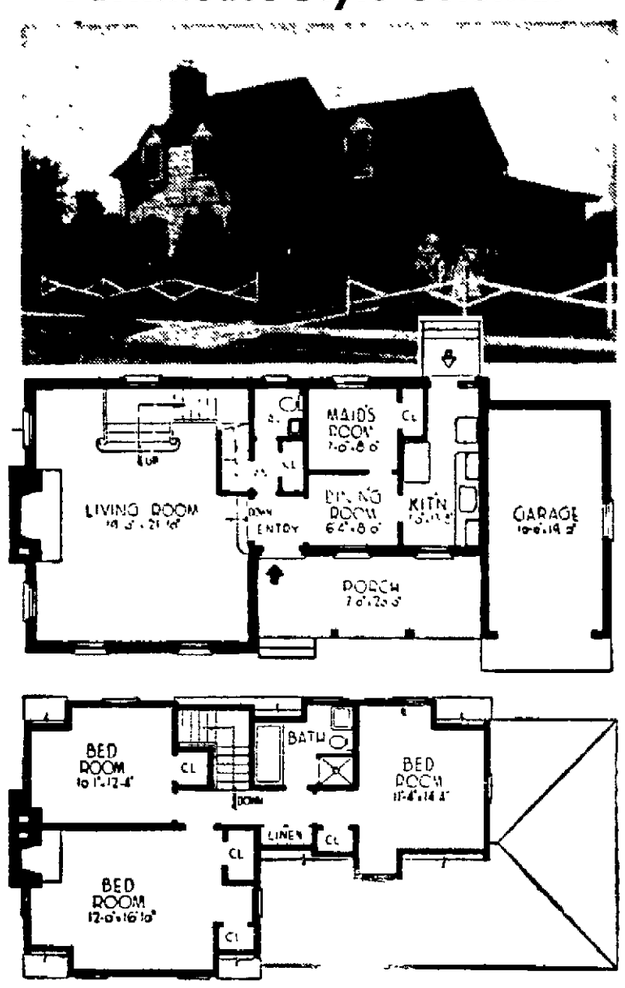
A shower over the tub does not add appreciably to the cost of the bathroom inasmuch as the same valves control the water supply for the tub can be used for the shower. A simple diverter device directs the flow of water to either the tub or the shower, at the will of the bather.

The harmonious blending of the lines of the lavatory, tub, and closet with the accessories creates a tasteful ensemble effect in the modern bathroom. The manufacturing economics of mass production have made it possible for the builder of the small house to provide fixtures in matched sets.

TYROLEAN INFLUENCE

Imitate the Tyrolean, Swiss or Italian peasants and make your kitchen gay with color Bright contrasts to your wall and woodwork colors can be introduced on the wainscot, front of cabinet and interior of cupboards by applying stencil work and line decoration

Farmhouse Style Colonial



This roomy colonial home in farmhouse style has a broad, arched porch which pleasantly unites house and garage. It is constructed of brick on the first story and shingled siding above

The interior is planned for two adults, a child and a maid An open stairway forms a striking feature of the big square living room which has rough hewn ceiling beams and pine-paneled walls

Architect Henry T. Child designed the house and it was chosen by The American Home, 444 Madison Ave New York, N. Y.

ROSEWOOD AND GREEN

A dining room furnished in natural rosewood with a striking grain has three white painted walls. The fourth is hung with green fabric which is also used for window draperies. An eggplant colored rug covers the floor.

Hardware Styles Change Just Like They Do In Homes

Styles in hardware have changed over the last few years in much the same way that tastes in house design have changed.

For the inside of many houses small, unobtrusive steel or iron butts prepared for paint are used. Then again, hardware has 'gone period" and in English, Spanish, or Italian houses wrought iron with either a semi-polished finish or a rusted finish is popular.

In Colonial houses the choice ranges from the wrought-iron thumb latches to the brass and silver cutwork plates with graceful drop handles. There are various types of iron spring latches exposed on the surface When thicker doors are used, mortised locks with round or oval brass knobs can be installed.

Period styles in hardware should be adhered to as meticulously as in furniture or architecture Use of the wrong type of hardware can spoil the entire effect created by the architecture of a house.

WIDE STAIRS

When building a home see that the stairs to the attic are of practical width. The size of your attic door and stairway determines how useful the attic will be. Remember the heavy trunks and cumbersome furniture that may have to go up and down and gauge the width accordingly Also remember that some day you may want to remake your attic into an extra bedroom or study and you will not want to ask your guest or family to walk the plank like chickens going to roost.

PAINT INSIDE OF DRAWERS

To help keep the interior of bureau drawers spick and span, paint or varnish their interiors with some light color to match the trim of the furniture or contrast with it effectively.

WELL-DESIGNED SHELTERS GIVE ADDITIONAL BEAUTY TO GARDEN

One crocus may not make a Spring, but it usually serves to turn the thoughts of the home owner gardenwards. In many parts of the country this time-honored little harbinger of balmy days has already made its appearance and plans for garden shelters, tool houses, and new landscaping effects are being contemplated.

The garden shelter, or gazebo, as it is otherwise known, may be built and located so that it has both decorative and practical values. Here one may sit and enjoy the vista of the garden, eat a picnic lunch, or read undisturbed.

The character of the shelter will be determined largely by the location. If it commands a view beyond the gardens, the house should be open to both the garden and the view. If the garden ends against another property, over which one has no control it would be better to arrange the open portion of the shelter so that only the garden may be seen.

A part of the shelter may contain a tool closet. If such storage space is available, tools will be handy and the house kept free from the inevitable dirt that is shed when trowels and rakes are stored indoors. Another closet can be provided for outdoor game equipment, which is often allowed to deteriorate in the open for lack of convenient storage space.

The garden house may be as simple or ornate as good taste and purse dictate. For a small backyard garden, a shelter at the rear of the lot will form a pleasing background It may be rustic or semi-formal, of frame or masonry. Such garden houses may be financed under the Property Improvement Credit Plan of the Federal Housing administration.

BUBBLE EFFECT

A bubble design for walls—adaptable to nursery or breakfast room—is produced by using a stencil board with circular openings of unequaled size. Hold this board against a wall which has been painted in a light color, and stipple around the edge of the circular openings with paint of a darker color, blending the paint toward the center of the circle.

NATURE THE GREATEST BUILDER GAVE US LUMBER!

WHEN the World received it's heritage of natural resources, Nature provided vast domains of forests composed of trees of many species. This was as it should be for the product of the forests was destined to lend itself more readily to a greater multiplicity of the vital needs of our everyday life than likely would any of the other of the natural resources.

Not the least of these uses is lumber for structural purposes and a specie for each structural need has been provided.

Use wood, as nature intended, for your structural needs and some of the dividends will be materials of lasting qualities, friendliness, warmth cheerfulness and beauty.

Consult your local lumberman in your structural problems as you do your physician in cases of illness.

THE ADDED ROOM---! A CLEAN, DRY BASEMENT

So Build Your New Basement with Cinder Blocks

DAMP PROOF

The insulative character of Cinder Blocks prevents condensation on the wall and the limited capillary eliminates the danger of moisture being drawn from the outside. Buildings are always dry and conducive to good health.

In bygone years the basement usually was considered only a place in which to house the heating plant, fuel bin, washing facilities or other domestic appliances and as a general catch-all store room. As a matter of fact a properly built basement is warm, dry, livable, and offers many possibilities for increasing home comforts.

To make basements livable means that the floors and the walls must be built so that they will be clean, sanitary, attractive and, above all, watertight. These requirements may be fully met through the use of cinder units both in the floor and walls.

BIDDING TAKES ON TRI-CITY ASPECT AS JACOBS HUNTS SITE FOR TITLE GO

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK—(INS)—In the midst of rival haggling over the site of the Max Schmeling-Joe Louis "gold rush" prize fight June 22 for the world's heavyweight championship—and as definite announcement on the matter hovered expectantly in the offing—two developments of more than minor importance were indicated today.

For one thing, Promoter Mike Jacobs apparently was not going to Chicago this morning, as reported, to inspect Soldier's Field with his seating architect, Lionel Levy; he apparently was going to the Yankee stadium with his matchmaker, Bill Farnsworth, for a reputed conference with Messrs. Ruppert and Barrow. For another, the bidding suddenly took on a tri-city aspect and the third eligible was not Detroit, Mich.

It was, as a matter of fact, Philadelphia, Pa., which overnight has come in for a great deal of confidential consideration with an offer of its municipal stadium, rent free, for the fight. It was at the Philadelphia stadium 12 years ago that Dempsey and Tunney played to 128,000 people, by much the greatest gathering that ever saw boxing anywhere, any time.

Jacobs, in a personal talk with the writer this morning, admitted Philadelphia's sudden bid for dominance of the situation, but he shied away from a direct answer on the rent-free angle. He refused, in fact, to confirm or deny any of the reported details, being determined, he said, to withhold his decision until later in the week, possibly until after the Schmeling-Dudas fight in Germany on Saturday next.

* * *

Yankee Stadium Has Inside Track.

MEANTIME, New York—smugly or otherwise—seems to be taking it for granted that the award, when all the necessary blather is stilled to the Yankee stadium is now almost inevitable.

But those close to the promoter claim that he wishes that he was as sure of his own intentions as everybody else seems to be.

"They're guessing," said one of the promoter's intimates today. "What else can they do? He's still doing some guessing himself."

I think that I can say with considerable confidence, however, that if the selection hasn't already been made, it will be after the talk with the ball park officials and that the rental question will be an abiding factor. Soldier's Field, for instance, has been beaten down to an asking price of 5 per cent of the receipts which various estimates have placed anywhere from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000, depending upon just how one goes about the problem of restraining one's boyish enthusiasm.

But I'd say that, if Chicago expects to hustle Philadelphia out of further consideration, it'll have to do no worse than equal Philadelphia's offer—and give Soldier's field away for the evening.

The Yankee stadium, meanwhile, has been exacting something like 10 per cent of every fight here and the understanding seems reasonably general that its business manager, the said Barrow, wouldn't give away the wrong end of a used cigar. Estimates differ, of course but some of his harsher critics even say that Mr. Barrow is a little closer than a coat of paint.

* * *

Barrow May Have to Shade His Price.

HIS tendencies, to make a nice point of it, are neither civic nor charitable but his ball field couldn't accommodate 100,000, if you laid them out in layers, and so if—as Manhattan's supposed cognoscenti continue to insist—the Yankee stadium is well ahead of the other bidders, there's one possible way of staying ahead.

Mr. Barrow probably will have to break the habit of a lifetime. He'll have to shade his price, with the sheer necessity for this step maybe being called to his outraged attention.

In fact, I'd be very surprised if it wasn't.

BROWNS WILL LEAVE CELLER THIS YEAR, SAYS GABBY

STREET . . . he's ambitious

By GABBY STREET

Manager, St. Louis Browns

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP)—Improvement of the St. Louis Browns' inner defense by some 50 per cent, plus some spirit they haven't known for years, should pull my boys out of the cellar this season.

Our club is greatly improved over last year's team. They've conditioned themselves like real champions down here this spring and we'll have no excuses from that angle.

The important factor to me is the spirit of the boys. Say, they've got much higher ambitions for this year than eighth place and with them feeling that way, I can't see to save me how we're going to finish back in the cellar.

Don't get me wrong—I don't say they're world beaters in any sense of the world, but they're going to surprise a lot of those boys up there in the first division.

I'm proud of that keystone combination of Red Kress at short and Roy Hughes at second base. Base hits won't be as plentiful around that territory as they were last year.

They should make a great double play combination, but not until they have played with each other long enough to sense the other's actions ahead of time. You don't meet a girl and marry her overnight, and that's the same way with double play men around second base. They have to know each other.

How about the American league race?

Too many things can happen to ball clubs between now and October. I don't see how any club can push ahead of the Yankees. But if any one of three of their important cogs fail to come through because of injuries or something else, there'll be the Detroit Tigers to deal with, and if that pitching staff Oscar Vitt has over at Cleveland comes through, those Indians will be heard from plenty.

When Luke Appling hurt himself, he also hurt Chicago's chances to climb higher in the race.

Now about the Browns, again. There'll be more than one morning in 1938 when teams in the American league will wake up with an unpleasant "Brown taste" in their mouths and minds.

Yanks, Giants Also Picked By Managers

Cleveland Gets One Vote For First Place.

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Another all-New York world series between the Yankees and the Giants was forecast today by the major league managers in making their annual pennant predictions for the United Press.

Seven managers in each league predicted the entire order of finish, only Bill Terry of the Giants and Oscar Vitt of the Indians declined.

"I never picked the order in which teams would finish in my life," said Terry, "and I never expect to."

Inasmuch as Terry used a "ghost writer" in his last literary effort, the liberty was taken of substituting a New York newspaperman's selections in the Giant pilot's place. These selections were based on opinions Terry has expressed throughout the spring. Vitt named the Yankees to repeat but begged off picking where the rest would finish because of his unfamiliarity with the American league.

The Yanks are a stand-out choice among the American league pilots to repeat, seven picking them first and one second. The lone dissenter, who asked that his name be withheld, picked Cleveland to triumph. It wasn't Vitt who picked the Indians.

Indians Get 51 Points to 63 for Yanks.

Here's how the major league managers predict the outcome of the 1938 pennant races based on a scoring system of 8 opints for first, 7 points for second, 6 points for third, etc.:

American League: 1. New York, 63 points; 2. Detroit, 54; 3. Cleveland, 51; 4. Boston, 35; 5. Chicago, 33; 6. Washington, 27; 7. St. Louis, 14; 8. Philadelphia, 11.

National League: 1. New York, 60 points; 2. Chicago, 54; 3. Pittsburgh, 48; 4. St. Louis, 46; 5. Boston, 26; Cincinnati, 23; 7. Brooklyn 21; 8. Philadelphia, 11.

ANNOUNCES CHANGE IN INTER-CITY SKED

Mansfield teams bowling in the Inter-City tournament in Alliance on Saturday will take to the alleys for the five-man event at 4 p. m. instead of 10, W. S. Young, secretary of the Mansfield Bowling association, announced today. The change was made to permit the Mansfield bowlers to roll their doubles and singles at 10.

GIANTS' TWO CRIPPLES SHOW SIGNS OF LIFE

OWENSBORO, Ky.—(AP)—The New York Giants' two cripples, Slick Castleman and Burgess Whitehead, are showing encouraging signs of life. Whitehead played against Cleveland yesterday, made a hit and scored a run. Castleman pitched to a catcher for the first time and let go a couple of hard ones. He has not felt a twinge in his ailing back since he started work.

Believes Vitt Will Make Indians Hustle

Talbot Contends Longview Incident Merely an Example of Pilot's Scheme to Arouse Tribe.

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK—(AP)—An event of significance which appears to have been overlooked was Oscar Vitt's outburst the other day at Longview, Tex., when he took his Cleveland Indians off the field and refused to finish an exhibition game with the New York Giants.

In so doing, Oscar risked incurring a personal fine of $1,000, plus forfeiture of his club's share of the day's receipts. This observer, being by nature a skeptic, doubts that Oscar really got that mad. He prefers to regard the exhibition, rather, as a sample of the raw meat Oscar is preparing to feed his Indians to get them in a fighting frame of mind.

It's no trade secret that what the Indians have needed for the last several years was a dash of paprika, particularly when playing on hostile fields.

Watch Vitt's Efforts.

Right now every manager in the American league is watching Vitt's efforts to inoculate his collection of stars with a shot of team spirit.

Some of them doubt, frankly, that he will be successful. But there's no doubt in anybody's mind that the Indians potentially are capable of giving the Yankees a bear fight.

With the Longview incident as a starter, Vitt is likely to become a genuine problem child before the season is half over. The fact that it is his first year as a big league pilot won't feaze him. He knows he has to make good at Cleveland in a hurry, if at all, and he is going to come out tossing punches.

How it happens that certain ball teams, no matter how brilliant the performances of the individuals, come to be accepted as "poor road clubs," or even as teams lacking the "winning spirit," is one of baseball's little mysteries. Frequent changes of personnel don't seem to remove the stigma.

The Cleveland players, when they talk to you seriously, blame all their disappointments on their managers. The pitchers claim that neither Steve O'Neill nor Walter Johnson, the immediate predecessors of Vitt, handled them properly. O'Neill and Johnson, of course, have something else to say.

Needs Confidence.

At any rate, Vitt realized when he took the job that his biggest task was gaining the confidence of his players, and molding them into a fighting unit. The club itself was set to go, except at second base, with the most formidable pitching staff in either league.

How well Oscar has succeeded in making them over into the "Battling Clevelands" remains to be found out. He has worked hard at it. He has sat longer with his men in more hotel lobbies and talked more words than any other manager. His players like him. This corner's guess is that the Indians are going to look like a different Tribe.

Solters' Big Bat Beats Giants, 8-7.

OWENSBORO, Ky.—(U.P.)—Yesterday at Paducah, Ky., Julius Solters faced major league pitching for the first time since the close of the championship season last fall. He proved he had not lost his batting eye by pounding out three hits in four trips to the plate and personally leading the Indians to an 8 to 7 triumph over the Giants.

Cleveland went into the last half of the ninth trailing New York by two runs. Bruce Campbell singled and Hale was safe on an error by Mel Ott. Solters then stepped into the breach and slammed one of Harry Gumbert's pitches over the left-center field fence for a home run. In addition to those three runs, Solters drove in two other Cleveland markers in the fifth inning with a long double.

Johnny Allen, Joe Heving and Bill Zuber shared the pitching burden for the Indians and were nicked for 10 hits. Allen was the most impressive of the trio. He worked six innings and gave up five hits.

New Threat In All-Events

CHICAGO — (AP) — Unless Joe Kulik, stocky Chicago kegler, loses his edge overnight, the American bowling congress all-events lead may change hands today. Kulik, anchor man for the Bill Rand's five, was never better than last night when he chalked up 726 points. The 726 was a good start toward top rating for the all-around title. Two 626 series will do the work today.

The Arvay Chips of Lorain, O., scoring 2882, was one of the teams with fairly high scores last night. Bill Fazekas, with 668, was largely responsible. Renner Beer of Ashtabula, O., chalked up 2872, and the Zippo Lighters of Bradford, Pa., 2869, were next in order.

Hi-Speed Club Seeks Players

All Mansfield baseball players wishing tryouts with the Hi-Speeds are requested to report to Manager Brownie Corcoran at Blue Goose field at 5 p. m. any day this week.

The club will hold daily workouts for the balance of the month in preparation for the opening game at Blue Goose May 1.

Games with the Akron Juniors Sandusky and Keller News of Norwalk have been scheduled by the Hi-Speeds. Home and home games will be played with the teams.

MEET WEDNESDAY

Baseball players wishing tryouts with newly organized semi-pro baseball club are requested to attend a meeting at the Rex Billiard clubroom, 226 North Main street, at 7 p. m. Wednesday. Joe Blackwell is business manager of the club.

FORD V-8'S, NOTICE

Members of last year's Ford Moorhead Ford V-8 baseball team are requested to turn in uniforms to Dewey Durant, 50 Willow street.

MUSILLE'S OPEN PRACTICE

Manager Pete Schadek of the Musille's softball team wants all players to report to him at Columbia field at 6 p. m. Wednesday when the team starts daily workouts.

FAVORED ON ICE

CHICAGO—(U.P.)— The Chicago Blackhawks were seven to five favorites today to climax the year's greatest sports comeback by regaining the world championship in the fourth game of the Stanley Cup finals against Toronto's Maple Leafs. Chicago now holds a 2 to 1 game advantage.

Alabama Kid's Foe Sports Fine Record

Bud Creed, Who Appears at Armory Wednesday, Has Beaten Slaughter, English.

By OSCAR RUHL, News-Journal Sports Editor.

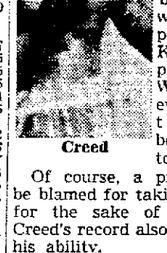
ONLY fistic fans who follow boxing closely know Bud Creed, who meets the Alabama Kid in the 10-round main go on the Quality club's show Wednesday night at the Armory.

But according to newspaper clippings, Creed, a colored Milwaukee middleweight, must be a pretty good puncher.

Promoter Tim Nolan signed the youngster after he literally tore Tony Usas to pieces in Dayton last week.

Changes His Mind.

Nolan had intended to sign Usas, who is building quite a reputation in Dayton, for the Kid, but changed his mind after seeing Creed go to town so impressively.



Creed

The Quality club matchmaker believes Creed will be a willing partner for the Kid in a lively punching bee Wednesday, and even thinks that the Wisconsin boy has a chance to win.

Of course, a promoter cannot be blamed for taking this attitude for the sake of the gate, but Creed's record also speaks well for his ability.

Fighters whom he has met include Harry English, Sammy Slaughter, Frankie Battaglia and Battling Bozo.

Creed traded punches with English twice, and divided the decisions. He also split even with Slaughter in a pair of scraps.

He beat Battaglia, and knocked out Bozo, Young Stribling's eccentric sparring partner for the Schmeling fight.

Their First Meeting.

Creed has never fought the Alabama Kid, and whether he can stand up under the Columbus clouter's punches will be determined Wednesday.

The Kid-Creed bout tops a card including four scraps. Three six-rounders will precede the main go, Jack Delaney, an old Mansfield favorite, appearing in one.

Reserved tickets are on sale at the Willis Billiard emporium and Hunt's News depot.

Imposing List of Officials Secured For Mansfield Relays

THE "Who's Who" of the Ohio collegiate coaching profession will be on the scene on action at the 12th renewal of the Mansfield Relays Saturday, April 23.

All of the prominent college athletic heads will serve as officials of this city's gigantic track and field carnival, Director Harry Mehock announced today.

All of the officials excepting only Ellis C. Vander Pyle, Pat Pasini and a few Mansfield helpers will be new to the Relays. All are experienced in this type of work.

Vander Pyle, now a radio announcer in Cleveland, has served as an official in the Relays for many years, and he will again serve as clerk of course, Mehock announced.

Pasini To Return.

Pat Pasini of Mentor, who has been starter for the last two relays, will again serve in the same capacity.

Other officials wil be Bill Edwards, Western Reserve; Ray Ride, Case; Ray Watts, Baldwin-Wallace; Ernie Godfrey, Ohio State; George Gauthier, Ohio Wesleyan; Tom Conley, John Carroll; and Floyd Rowe, director of physical education of Cleveland schools.

PITTSBURGH—(AP)—Jack Fox, 181½, Seattle, Wash., outpointed Jack Trammel, 193½, Youngstown, O., (10).

THEATER

PARAMOUNT studio has completed plans to bring to the screen "Little Orphan Annie," in a detective story in which the precocious child will round up a bunch of bad men. Most of the characters that are introduced from time to time in the popular newspaper strip will be woven into the picture. A campaign is under way to find a child actress for the title role, as the player chosen will either make or break the picture. "Little Orphan Annie" has long maintained number one position in newspaper cartoon strips. It came into being in 1924 and has grown steadily in popularity. A radio serial based on the cartoon has been on the networks for the past six years. A recent survey by Fortune magazine revealed that "Little Orphan Annie" heads the list of favorite cartoons for adults as well as for children.

Plantation Scenes.

The beauty and gallantry of the Deep South is portrayed in "Jezebel," the Bette Davis starring picture at the Ohio, with old plantation mansions, fast horses and beautiful women, hard-riding men and the gay parties that made up life in New Orleans in the 1850's. The story is an unusual one of a girl who was tormented by a consuming passion for one man but who did everything to drive him from her. In one dramatic scene she attempts to provoke a duel between the two men who love her, and does bring death to one of them. Miss Davis, who has been attractive, but seldom beautiful in her pictures, shows a new beauty of face in this picture, and in several instances—once when she kneels before Pres Dillard to beg his forgiveness—is bewilderingly beautiful. The scenes of the yellow plague sweeping the city, are somber and dark.

Radio Beauty Sings.

Jane Froman, one of the loveliest lovelies of radio, sings "Speak Your Heart" in "Radio City Revels," big musical which is current at the Madison. Miss Froman, who has beauty of face as well as of voice, is said to be held back from a screen career by her fright of the camera which causes her to stutter slightly. It is not apparent in her singing on the screen. Kenny Baker and Ann Miller "follow their hearts" in this filmusical which stars Baker, Bob Burns and Jackie Oakie. The ecentric dancing of Buster West and Melissa Mason provides one of the most entertaining angles of the picture. On the comedy end, besides the stars are Victor Moore, Helen Broderick and Milton Berle.

* * *

The Accident Racket.

Gloria Blondell, sister of Joan, plays a leading role in "Accidents Will Happen," with Ronald Regan appearing opposite her. The accidents racket, exposed not so many months ago, is the basis of the action. Professional "victims" have their bones broke and then fall in front of cars in order to collect insurance. The second feature is the hilarious comedy "A Day At The Races," in which the Marx Brothers combine all of the insanities they can think of. Groucho is a doctor at a hospital, Harpo is a jockey, and Chico sells ice cream cones—or is it vice versa?—and there is a race that gives the picture its title. Allan Jones sings in his best manner and carries on the romantic theme with Maureen O'Sullivan. The bill is at the Majestic.

Real Crime Revealed.

Lee Tracy, the stage and screen star who can out talk Graham McNamee when it comes to speed, is an ambitious scenario writer who crashes Hollywood with a brief case full of scripts in "Crashing Hollywood," Ritz attraction for the middle of the week, and open-day today at that theater. Falling in with a crook, he gets, first hand, the story of a crime. But when he writes the story and it is filmed, he almost writes his own death warrant, for police recognize it as the solution to a real crime. Lee Patrick and Joan Woodbury have major roles. One of the early Clark Gable pictures, in which Wallace Beery co-starred with him, is also offered. It is "Hell Divers," a thrilling tale of the navy aviators.

ATTORNEYS SUE CITY EMPLOYE

Bring Action To Collect $150 On Note given To Cover Fees.

Clarence F. Stillwagon, 17 Lida street, who brought action against the city of Mansfield several months ago to recover his job in the waterworks department, today had been named defendant in a suit for $150 attorney fees.

The action was filed in common pleas court by Attys. Joseph A. Bayer and C. F. Creedman, who represented Stillwagon in his suit against the city, in which he charged that he was dismissed without cause.

The attorney's petition seeks to collect on a note given them last Feb. 14 to cover counsel fees. The note was payable on demand.

Stillwagon has been since restored to his former job as pumper at the city waterworks.

HEWS FIGURES AT MARIETTA

Borglum, Famed Sculptor, on Job to Resume Work on Northwest Memorial.

(By United Press)

MARIETTA—Gutzon Borglum, internationally known sculptor commissioned by the government to execute the massive "Start Westward of the United States" for the Northwest Territory Celebration, has arrived here to resume work on the memorial.

Nearly all of the stone to be used in the memorial has been quarried. Due to the enormous weight of the stones, one stone being used in the statuary group weighing more than 100 tons, and another 60 tons, the group is being roughly carved at the quarry to reduce weight in moving. Labor for the quarrying and carving operations is being supplied by WPA.

The 80 ton block from which the 10-foot heroic figures are being carved is nearing completion, and will be moved to the site shortly to receive finishing touches.

The memorial is being erected in Muskingum park, the river front commons dedicated by the Ohio Company pioneers forever for public use, and will occupy the exact spot where the first civil government west of the 13 original states was established. The park will be framed by four stone pylons capped by conventional stone eagles, also sculptured by Borglum and will provide a lasting commemoration of the nation's first footprint west of the Alleghenies and its westward march to the other sea.

Dedication will take place July 15, designated as United States Day by the Northwest Territory Celebration Commission.

HAVE YOU TRIED

THE WANT ADS TO SELL YOUR LIVESTOCK, PRODUCE, FARMS, SEED OR USED MACHINERY

NEWS-JOURNAL WANT ADS are the market place of hundreds of North Central Ohio livestock men. You'll find mules, teams, single horses and all kinds of other livestock offered at a wide range of prices. If there are none listed that appeal to you, it will pay to run an ad of your own, describing the kind of animals you wish to buy. Such an ad will save the time it takes to scour the countryside, and usually gives the advertiser an opportunity to pick and choose.

SELLING STEMS EARLY ADVANCE IN SLOW MART

Analysts Find Cheer in Figures of Institute Disclosing Rise In Steel Earnings.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Faint rallying signs appeared in today's stock market but dealings were extremely slow on the attempted comeback.

After pushing up fractions to a point or more at the opening, leaders met sufficient selling to stem the advance and top marks were reduced or cancelled near the second hour.

Securities at London were higher and mixed at Paris, with the French political picture taking on a cloudier appearance in the face of strike outbreaks. Bonds and commodities were uneven. Wheat at Chicago weakened on bumper crop forecasts.

Market analysts found some cheer in figures of the American Iron and Steel institute disclosing earnings of the steel industry for 1937 represented a return of about 6.2 per cent on investment as against a return of 4.6 per cent in 1936.

On the recovery side also was a Dun & Bradstreet summary estimating new building construction in March in 215 representative cities aggregated $76,598,907, an increase of 41.8 per cent over the two year low recorded in February.

Not so pleasing was the announcement bankers' acceptances at the end of March had dropped to a total more than $103,000,000 below the level for the same date a year ago.

SHIPS FRIGHTEN ISLAND SECTOR

22 'Jap' Vessels Throw Scare Into Philippines.

MANILA—(U.P.)— Something of a sensation was reported in the southern Philippine Islands today because of the presence of a fleet of 22 vessels 16 miles off Davao, chief town of Mindanao Island and a center of Japanese colonization.

Reports here were that the ships resembled "Japanese" destroyers and alleged that there was widespread alarm in the southern islands.

Radio dispatches from Davao said that the fleet was sighted Sunday afternoon off Calian Point, near Daxao.

FUTILE DASH

Mother Runs Half Mile To Hospital With Dead Baby.

NEW YORK — (INS) — Carrying her six month's old infant, Mrs. Stella Resti, 20, ran half a mile to the hospital to discover the child dead. The child died of suffocation. Mrs. Resti and her husband were packing their few belongings after receiving an eviction notice when she noticed the baby was unconscious. Instead of calling an ambulance she ran to the hospital with the child.

GETS RELEASE

Convicted Cleveland Banker to Be Deported to Canada.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — The state parole board today granted C. Stirling Smith, former Cleveland bank president convicted of embezzlement, a conditional release to federal authorities for deportation to Canada, effective April 29.

Smith entered Ohio penitentiary Oct. 25, 1934, to serve a sentence of two to 70 years on charges of embezzlement.

ONDOV ASSURED OF BIG EASTER

weeks ago tomorrow. He visited Ondov several days ago, and after a number of tests on the paralyzed limbs said that he had advanced further in three weeks than most such cases do in three months.

Tests for muscle and nerve reaction of Ondov's feet and legs showed there was definite reaction to heat and cold and sharp instruments.

It was the first time the specialist had seen Ondov since the operation and he expressed himself as being "well pleased" with the result.

Rev. Gilbert said today that the drive for a fund to pay for Ondov's operation and months in the hospital is not completed. Several churches and groups are yet to report on their campaign to aid the student, whose family's funds were exhausted some time ago and whose recovery depends upon proper care and treatment.

Phone Call Meant Life Or Death— And He Missed It

CHICAGO—(INS)—A telephone call was all that stood between Alfred Newgard and life. But he missed the call.

Newgard was an iceman. On Saturday he stopped at a delicatessan and sampled the salmon salad in the refrigerator before leaving.

Dexter Phipps, the owner, was away. When he returned a clerk remarked that the iceman had ilked the salad.

"But he didn't eat much," said the youth hurriedly as he saw Phipps' shocked expression.

"It's a good thing," shouted Phipps. "it had rat poison in it. I was keeping it there until we closed up tonight."

Phipps telephoned the ice company. Newgard wasn't there but he left word for him to call. When he failed to do so Phipps decided he hadn't eaten enough to make him ill.

Yesterday, Newgard died. Phipps was exonerated by a coroner's jury to whom he told his story.

WOMEN DRAFT 36 VOTE ISSUES FOR APPROVAL

National League Proposing Sweeping Changes In U. S. and State Governments.

(By United Press)

ST. LOUIS — The National League of Women Voters, in preparation for its biennial convention here April 25-29, has issued its proposed program for 1938-40, covering nine objectives in federal legislation, 12 in state work and 15 general objectives.

"Placing our program in the hands of members in advance of the convention affords an opportunity for each member to study closely every proposal," Miss Marguerite Wells, president, said.

The list of general objectives was headed by the merit system. This was in accordance with the league's work for the past two years in stressing the advantage of the merit system and working to effect the elimination of the spoils.

Other subjects listed for general support included:

Opposition to discrimination in public employment based on sex or marital status; permanent tax commissions to develop a coordinated tax system based on ability to pay; social security-unemployment compensation; federal state employment service, old age assistance and measures affecting children; protection of consumers' interests; statuatory guarantees of rights to bargain collectively and jury service for women.

The proposals for federal action were: amendment of the constitution simplifying the amending process to make it more responsive to the will of the people; international economic co-operation and participation in the collective peace system; reduction and limitation of armaments by international agreement, and government control of the manufacture and shipment of arms.

Measures for state action were: The muinicpal manager plan, preferably with the council elected by proportional representation; permanent registration; the short ballot; ratification of the child labor amendment to the constitution; compulsory education with free textbooks and public education available to adults.

ASK EXTENSION

Park Avenue East Property Owners Back 2-Hour Parking Limit.

City council had before it today a request for the extension of the two-hour parking limitation on Park avenue east.

A petition on file with Council Clerk William J. Beer, jr., bearing the signatures of 16 property owners on the street, asked council to extend the two-hour restrictions to include that section of the street between Hedges and Adams streets.

The two-hour parking restriction on Park avenue east extends now from Diamond street to Adams street.

The Fellowship of Prayer

Daily Lenten Devotion

By DR. WILLARD L. SPERRY

Tuesday, April 12. "Watch therefore: for ye know not" (Matthew 24:42). Read Matthew 25:1-11.

In the words, "watch . . . for ye know not," repeated so often during Holy Week, Jesus comes to the end of his resources as a teacher. He can only counsel vigilance of spirit.

There are some things that cannot be effectively taught before the event. You cannot tell men what the elemental experiences of life are like until they have passed through them. No advance description is adequate.

Religion is forever confronted with this difficulty; Jesus himself knew and faced it. Sooner or later every man needs the help of religion, but you cannot make him realize that need until he feels the want. And then, oil for the lamps is not to be had on short notice. We can only accept the common human testimony that sudden temptation and equally sudden opportunity, unexpected pain, swift troubles, sorrow, and at the last death, fall within the normal lot of man. We cannot feel these things ahead of their own time. "Life itself," as Father Tyrrell said, "is the only schoolmaster that can lead us to Christ." But meanwhile we can take Christ at his word, "Watch . . . for ye know not."

Prayer: Give to us, O God, the vigilant spirit which knows that nothing human is foreign to our lot, and prepare us by daily discipline for the hours of proving and opportunity which life yet holds for us: through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

GETS KENT POST

KENT —(INS)— Dr. Earl Willis Crecraft, head of the political science department at Akron university, today was named dean of the college of liberal arts at Kent State university, succeeding Dr. Oscar H. Williams, resigned.

RECEIPTS DROP

City Court Revenue for March $700 Under February.

Municipal court receipts totaling $1,268.40 for March fell more than $700 under the revenue for February, the monthly report of collections prepared by Miss Isabel Gerstmeyer, deputy clerk, showed today.

Part of the decrease was attributed to the drop in revenues in traffic forfeitures over February's total which set an all-time total for that department.

From the total receipts, the city's general fund will be increased by $1,034.80 while $233.60 will be distributed to the state, county and law library.

Fines and costs collected in city criminal cases totaled $130.20; traffic forfeitures, $470; city's share of state highway patrol cases, $54.15; forfeitures in criminal cases, $56.50; and costs payable to the city from state cases, $110.40.

DEATH HELD SUICIDE

COLUMBUS — (INS) — Coroner Edward E. Smith gave a verdict of suicide today after examining the body of Mrs. Lulu Estelle Bell, 61. The woman took her life by turning on the gas in a room she rented a week ago in a rooming house.

Brings Termites Into Court But Plea's Rejected

It required less than an hour for a jury in common pleas court to decide that Ralph Tennant of near Crestline was not entitled to a $400 refund because a house he purchased in Bucyrus was infested with termites.

Tennant had brought action against Edith B. Pry of Shelby, charging that she misrepresented the property when she sold it to him last June for $1,800.

The plaintiff brought a small colony of live termites confined in a glass jar, into the courtroom for display before the jury and introduced pieces of worm-eaten wood, said to have been taken from the house in Bucyrus.

He contended that the house, because of the infestation, is worth only $800, and asked the court to award him the $400 difference between the value he placed on the property and the $1,200 he paid the defendants who the deal was completed.

He also asked for cancellation of a $600 note and mortgage representing the balance due on the home.

SILVER WEALTH OF IDAHO LASTS

Rich Deposits Discovered In 1880's Have Developed 30 Mining Companies.

(By United Press)

COEUR D'ALENE, Ida.—The richest deposits of silver and lead in the world were discovered in the early 1880s when miners were magnetized to the Coeur d'Alene mountains by the cry of gold.

Since that time approximately 30 large mining companies have dug into the steep mountainsides of the district and brought out valuable metals. Comparatively little gold was mined.

The Coeur d'Alenes, lying in the Idaho panhandle, run north and south in the northern part of the state. Lewis and Clarke, searching for the Pacific Ocean, were the first white men to set foot on them.

Eighty years later the nation began hearing of rich placers in the district. Fabulous reports prompted all kinds of men to set out for these mountains that promised and produced fortunes. By February, 1884, 1,000 men had arrived.

The next year the miners found, contrary to expectations, many silver and lead deposits. Frequently the galenic lodes appeared on the surface. Biggest discovery was the Bunker Hill.

Then followed typical boom towns. Eagle City was the first. Its decline was as rapid as its growth, however. Carbon City, Butte City, Raven City, Myrtle, Murray and Wardner also sprouted.

Tax Delinquents 'Discover' They Are Land Owners

Nearly a dozen Richland county residents "discovered" property they had forgotten or never knew they owned, during the compiling of the delinquent tax list published in yesterday's News-Journal, according to County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe.

"Before submitting the list for publication, we contacted all delinquent taxpayers and gave them a chance to pay, and were surprised to find that a number of them either had forgotten they owned the lots or disclaimed ownership of them," Wolfe said. The auditor's records, however, prove ownership.

Yesterday's list of 1,300 names, which is published as required under a new state law, was reduced from 2,700 names in the past month, Wolfe said, when property owners paid up or arranged to pay in order to keep their names out of the paper.

Publication of the delinquent list is made here for the first time in six years, the auditor said.

The Northwest Ordinance

Where Idea of Settling The Northwest Territory Was Born, Back In 1783

"Religion, morality and knowledge being necessary to the good government and the happiness of mankind, schools and the means of education shall forever be encouraged."

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first of a series of nine articles concerning the Northwest Ordinance, famed historical document which led to the settling of the Northwest territory of which Ohio was a part. The author is John Correll, instructor at Hedges Junior High school, and general chairman of the Mansfield observance of the 150th anniversary of the signing of the Ordinance, which will occur on May 2, when a modern-day caravan, traveling over the route taken by these early settlers, will be in Mansfield.

JOHN CORRELL
Instructor, Hedges Junior High School.

The bitter struggle for independence was ended. Washington's army, tired and penniless, awaited dismissal at Newburgh, N. Y. This was in June 1783.

For eight long years these men had endured tragic suffering and indescribable hardships. Their meager fortunes had dissolved, and their woes increased when they learned that they were to be paid not with hard money, but with continental certificates, worth little and nothing.

Inevitably their thoughts turned from the dismal past to the future which, indeed, seemed endless and futile. These men, all of them afflicted with the same misfortunes, began to discuss their prospects, their hopes, and the aspiration. And out of that common discussion there came the realization that their only chance of survival lay in the development of the land west of the mountains.

The Petition Drawn.

So they drew up a petition. In it they prayed congress to fulfill its pledge of 1776 and make immediate assignment to them of certain tracts of land lying between the Ohio river and Lake Erie and west of Pennsylvania. And it went further:

This petition not only asked for lands, but it specified "Certain Principles of Government" under which they willed to live.

Two hundred eighty-eight officers signed this petition, which was called the Newburgh Petition. It was presented to congress on the eve of the acceptance of the Treaty of Paris, June 16, 1783. In addition, Rufus Putnam, a signer of it, dispatched a letter to Washington himself begging for his influence in getting the petition granted.

The Cradle of Ohio.

But congress failed to act; so Putnam arranged a meeting at his home, Rutland, Mass., which was later called the "Cradle of Ohio." From this meeting came plans for a convention which was held in Boston at the "Bunch of Grapes Tavern." Here, on March 1, 1786, was formed the Ohio Company of Associates. Its purpose was to purchase land in the western Territory; and it was going to pay for that land with "Continental Certificates." This action by Putnam and the Ohio Company was the immediate cause of passage of the renowned Northwest Ordinance on July 13, 1787.

Significantly, the wording and the great humanitaritan principles contained in the Northwest Ordinance, are those of the humble and little known Newburgh Petition, which had been conceived by common men, drafted by common men, and finally forced through to acceptance by common men. The Ordinance has often been called the Plain Man's Constitution; and it rightly deserves this title.

The Ordinance of 1787 measures in importance with the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution which came two months later. It contains two parts; the first described the scheme of government to be erected; and the second set forth six articles, called a "compact."

At first the Northwest Territory was to be treated as a colony, with a governor and three judges, all appointees. As soon as there were 60,000 free inhabitants, the People could frame a state constitution and be admitted to the Union, "on an equal footing with the original states in all respects whatever."

Thus was established the principal of protecting a dependency or colony until it was strong enough to govern itself.

* * *

The Compact.

But it is the "Compact" of the ordinance that deserved our admiration. The pact presented for the first time in unified form the essence of American thought. It defined the relation of government to the rights of man. The "Compact" embodied within it the ideals for which the soldiers at Newburgh had fought and bled. It set forth boldly, and without equivocation man's right to worship as he saw fit; his right to trial by jury; his right to free education; his right to propose measures, discuss them freely and decide them by vote, and the right of the negro to be free.

Not statesmen, not politicians, not a privileged minority, but ragged continental, plain, ordinary Americans, it was who gave us the Northwest Ordinance, truly called the "Plain man's Constitution."

GENERAL FUND BALANCE RISES

County Reports $6,940 on Hand April 1, Increases of $463.

Richland county's general fund balance on April 1 was $6,940, an increase of $463 over the balance last month, the monthly financial report of County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe showed today.

General fund receipts of $26,941 during the month exceeded expenditures by $443. Increased real estate tax collections during the month boosted the total balance in all funds from $458,075 March 1 to $515,826.

The reports lists $135,600 in advances against the June tax settlement to schools and county subdivisions. Of that amount $107,000 went to Mansfield schools.

Mild Carolina Spring Starts Tulips Blooming

Although floods, blizzards and tornadoes played havoc with many sections of United States, a mild winter and early spring brought early blooms in the famous tulip fields in the vicinity of Washington, N. C. This striking view of a ten-acre tract of the gorgeous flowers, being picked by some of the Dutch colonists who donned costumes for the occasion, give some conception of scene's beauty.

CHAPTER X.

Algy was rather grey. He passed on, talked to Mary for a little, and found her gentle commonplaces a balm. She never said anything that you could label as wise or witty. She looked with her friendly eyes, and her voice was clear, and cool, and sweet. Algy esteemed James a lucky fellow.

When he saw Mr. Brewster rise from his cushion at Sylvia's feet, he crossed over, sped Cyril on his way, and annexed the vacant place. Sylvia, vaguely embarrassed, seemed about to be gone. Algy smiled at her.

"Do stay and talk to me, Lady Colesborough. Has he been warning you against me? Do tell me."

Sylvia responded a little nervously, and said, "Oh, no."

"I'm not really dangerous, you know, and we got on beautifully the other night, didn't we? Now let's talk about the country. Why do you hate it?"

"We were so poor," said Sylvia with simplicity.

* * *

Algy liked her for that. With good reason he pursued his ordered way. "But do you hate it when you're not poor? You were at Wellings last week, weren't you? Do you hate a place like that? It's lovely, isn't it?"

"I suppose so," said Sylvia doubtfully. "In summer it might be. I like lights in the streets, and plenty of shops, and people."

Algy laughed and said, "I expect there were plenty of people at Wellings, weren't there?"

"Well, it wasn't a big party."

"Who did they have?"

"Well, Poppy and Buffo—but, of course, it's their house. You know them, don't you?"

"Just a little."

"She has the most divine clothes." Sylvia's eyes waked into starry beauty. "She designs them herself, you know, and I can't how she does it. I do think clever people are marvelous — don't you?"

"They're a menace," said Algy. "I always avoid them. Who else did you have?"

"Well, his brother — Buffo's brother Binks—and his wife, Constance. She isn't a bit like Poppy."

"And you and your husband?"

"Yes, but Francis was late for dinner because he couldn't get away—business is so tiresome that way—so I had to go down alone."

"The Lushingtons were there, weren't they?"

Sylvia nodded.

"They had just arrived when I got there, but we had to go off and dress for dinner almost at once."

* * *

She was quite pleased to prattle. With a very little trouble Algy discovered the geography of the house and the whereabouts of the guests. There was an east wing and a west wing. Buffo and Poppy were in the west wing, and so were Binks and Constance. The Lushingtons had the big suite at the end of the east wing, and the Colesboroughs were next to them —"And we each had a room and a bathroom. You know, it's dreadful how few bathrooms we've got at Cole Lester—only three besides our own two, and I can't get Francis to see that it isn't enough."

They talked earnestly about bathrooms, and presently Algy got her back to Wellings again. It was possible to get her back, but not possible to keep her there. She broke away in the middle of a sentence and said, "You're a friend of Gay's, aren't you?"

Algy said, "Yes," and wondered if it was true. He was Gay's friend last night, but last night was a long time ago. They had stood together in the dark with anger flashing between. And someone had put Monty's envelope in his pocket, and Monty was being pressed to look no farther than his own household for the thief. Last night was a long way off. He wondered whether he was Gay's friend today, and he said, "Oh, yes."

Sylvia went on babbling about Gay.

* * *

Gay waked with a start to realize that the telephone bell was ringing. She said something short and sharp, sat up, and switched on the light. Her watch read half past twelve, an hour which seems quite early when you are out, but feels like the middle of the night when you have gone to bed. It felt like the middle of the night to Gay. Who in this world could be calling at such a ghastly time?

Barefoot Gay ran down the stairs, switching on lights as she went, a dressing-gown hung across her shoulders. Aunt Agatha would sleep through anything and the staff firmly disregarded any telephone call between 11 at night and 7 in the morning.

The bell was still ringing when Gay snatched the receiver and said in an abusive whisper, "Who are you?"

But of course she might have guessed.

Sylvia said in a plaintive voice, "Oh, darling, you do sound cross."

"Homicidal!" said Gay. "What's the matter? Do you know what time it is?"

"Darling, it's quite early."

"That's because you're turning night into day. I was in bed and asleep. I've come down five flights of stairs, and the temperature is somewhere 'round about zero."

She heard Sylvia catch her breath. "Darling, how did you hear it up five flights of stairs?"

This was pressure upon a wound. Gay spoke with bitterness.

"I didn't—no one could. That's why Aunt Agatha had a bell fixed up on my floor. It's supposed to be for the staff, but they just won't. Is this a talk of telephone, or do you really want something?"

"Oh, I do." Sylvia's voice changed. "Gay, I'm so frightened—I just had to ring you up."

"What are you frightened of? What have you been doing?"

"Nothing—I haven't really. But I shall have to. It's—it's so dreadful to have it coming nearer and nearer."

"What are you talking about?"

"You see, I've been out all day. I went shopping with Poppy, and we lunched together, and then we watched a mannequin show, and I had three cocktail parties, and I was going to dine with Mr. Brewster but fortunately I remembered about being engaged to Linda, and Francis had gone off to Birmingham or somewhere, so I took Mr. Brewster instead. And I liked it awfully. I wore my gold dress, you know, and I had a lot of compliments—"

"Sylly, what are you talking about?"

"Linda Westgate's party. Oh, and your Algy Somers was there."

Gay denied him with vehemence.

"He's not my Algy Somers!"

"Oh, I thought he was." Sylvia was vague and amiable. "But perhaps you'd better not, because Linda said Francis wouldn't like it if I let him take me out. No, really—she meant there was something wrong, only she wouldn't tell me what it was, and Mr. Brewster wouldn't either."

"Sylly, this is pure drivel. Have you got anything to say or haven't you? Because if you have, get on with it, and if you haven't, I'm going back to bed. I've probably got frost-bite already."

Sylvia, in a temperature mounting to 70 degrees, was without sympathy.

"You see," she pursued, "I quite forgot about it all day—at least not quite. But almost—but as soon as I came in and got up to my own room I felt dreadful again, because I know he'll make me do it, and I simply can't think what will happen if Francis finds out. And he will—I'm sure he will. He — he guesses things, and comes down on you like lightning."

"Sylly, listen!" Gay spoke firmly. "You're not to do anything at all. If this man wants you to take papers for him, you're not to do it."

"Darling, it's not papers."

"You said it was."

"No, it's his keys — Francis keys." Sylvia's tone suddenly brightened. "How stupid of me! I needn't have worried. Because Francis is away. He got a telegram and he went off, and of course he took his keys, so no one, not even that horrid Zero man, could make me do anything about them tonight. And I needn't have rung you up, but I've loved talking to you. Goodnight, darling."

* * *

Gay didn't say goodnight. She pitched the receiver back on its hook and ran violently up five flights of stairs to her room, where she took a flying leap into bed.

Sylvia hung up at her end with a little satisfied sigh. It was beautifully simple. Francis wasn't here, and his keys weren't here, so she couldn't take them. Even Mr. Zero must see that. She needn't have worried at all.

And then all of a sudden it came to her that Mr. Zero would be waiting outside the dining-room window from one to two, and it would look so very odd if anyone saw him. They might think all sorts of things or they might arrest him, and if he was arrested, there was no knowing what he might tell the police. She thought she had better go down and tell him to go away. She could open just a little bit of the diningroom window and say, "It's no good—Francis isn't here," and Mr. Zero would go away and they could all go to bed.

She looked at the little crystal clock beside her bed, and saw that it was a quarter to one. That would give her time to take off her gold dress and put it away and get into a dressing-gown.

When she had done this, she looked at the clock again. Just on one o'clock. She opened her bedroom door and looked out. A light burned there all night. It was one of the things that made Sylvia feel safe and rich. She went to the head of the stairs and looked over. She could see the drawingroom door, and the light shining on the pale green stair carpet.

She trailed her white crepe dressing-gown down to the stairway. As she came through the hall, the clock struck one with a keen, ringing note. She stood with her hand on the dining-room door and waited for the sound to die away. Then she went in, not putting on the light, but leaving the door wide behind her. She could find her way to the window in the dark, and what she had to say need not take a minute.

There were two windows of the old-fashioned sash type. She reached the nearer one and slid back the catch, standing between the heavy curtain and the glass. A coldness came from it. She shivered and pulled up the swansdown collar of her wrap. Then she stopped to raise the window.

* * *

It was heavy, but it moved. She heard it creak. Then she heard something else—a footstep just outside, crossing the pavement, coming quickly up to the door. She pressed her face to the glass. Suddenly, terribly, she was afraid. She had seen only a shadow, but she heard a horrifying and familiar sound, the little rattle which a latchkey makes when it is put into the lock, and hard upon that the click of the latch. The door swung in, swung back. The inner door swung in. A cold air came with it through the open dining-room door. Sylvia turned round, flattening herself behind the curtain, because it was Francis who had come into his own house in the middle of the night—it couldn't be anyone else but Francis.

TUESDAY, APRIL 12, 1938.

The boast that this is "a free country" shouldn't be taken too literally.

Speaking of the need for adult education, it seems that some motorists can't read even a "Stop" sign.

Hint to beginners: "Don't be afraid to admit you are green. When anything is green it is growing. After it is ripe it is ready to start rotting."

No Fortified Borders.

PAN-AMERICAN DAY, April 14, may become more important as the years pass and inhabitants of the United States realize how little they know about their sister republics to the south. Only our marines and some of our financial interests have been active in Central and South America. The marines have already come home. The financial interests may have to do so soon unless they can make more satisfactory arrangements with those governments, as the current difficulty over government seizure of oil properties in Mexico indicates.

There is one big matter for study and congratulation on this occasion, a situation too little known here. This hemisphere is completely free of fortified borders. The much-prized gunless border between the United States and Canada is but one of many. It is true there are frequent boundary disputes, and in recent years there have been bloody boundary wars, but the outlook now is for settlement of such problems by negotiation and treaty.

Another point needs stressing on this occasion—the new feeling of respect and good will between the nations of the northern and the southern continents following Uncle Sam's "good neighbor" program. The Monroe Doctrine has been subtly changed from a selfish policy imposed by a powerful government on weak governments to an assurance of standing by "when a feller needs a friend."

Liquor Board Sees Need of Clean-Up.

SERIOUS attempt by the Ohio liquor control board to improve present bad conditions in that traffic may be the outcome of such meetings as are now being planned—one of these to be held in Mansfield Tuesday evening, April 26.

Even those most tolerant of liquor-selling have recognized a weakness in present loose licensing methods and lax enforcement of regulations.

Possibly without intent on the part of the state liquor board, some licenses of various kinds fell into the hands of ignorant and irresponsible persons, who—in at least a few instances—seem to have had no knowledge of regulatory laws.

In other cases, as has been revealed, beer and wine licenses were used as a cloak to cover the sale of hard liquor—and the whole situation became worse than in the old saloon days, when licenses were limited and regulations enforced by a county board.

It is stated that the purpose of the meeting to be held here the latter part of this month is "to curb unethical and illegal practices likely to prove detrimental to the liquor business as a whole."

If this can be accomplished, and if licenses can be restricted to those who show willingness to conduct their business within the law, there should be noticeable improvement within a short time.

Avoid 'Sameness' In Cookery.

THAT old saying, "Variety is the spice of life," has no better application than when considered in connection with ways of preparing food.

Food is recognized as a basic physical need, yet merely supplying food in sufficient quantity and variety to meet bodily requirements is not enough.

There is legitimate complaint, in some quarters, of too much sameness in selection and preparation of food, rather than taking advantage of available information on ways to vary diet without increasing the cost of materials.

Such an opportunity is being offered Mansfield housewives and food purveyors this week during the annual News-Joural cooking school, with a nationally known cooking expert and lecturer on home making in charge—starting today and continuing through Friday.

While it is not recommended that food hold an uppermost place in thought, it cannot be escaped that good food, properly prepared and suitably varied, is highly essential to human health and happiness—and also that it plays an important part in establishing and maintaining connubial felicity.

The program, as announced for this week's cooking school sessions—together with the appetizing menus already mentioned—are sufficiently alluring to indicate that early arrival at the Ohio theater for the next three mornings will be an advantage.

High School Spending.

THE business English class of a New Jersey high school has been studying the spending habits of 985 students. Only 510 of them answered the questionnaires in full, so the findings may not give an exact picture.

It was found that the boys and girls spend $27,000 a year for candy, ice cream, pastry and carbonated drinks, with a generous sprinkling of peanuts and chewing gum.

They spent $15,000 a year for amusements, among which moving picture shows rank first.

They spend $36,000 a year for clothing. In addition, the girls spend $9,000 a year for hair waves, perfumes and other luxury articles.

The clothing total seems low, unless it represents mostly the small items which youngsters on allowances sometimes pay for while father buys the shoes, coats, and so on. If the sweet tooth outlay seems high, the students can refer their teachers and parents to the recent statement of a doctor that youth needs sugar as fuel for brain power.

But think of the wealth of a land in which children in high school spend with such freedom.

Word comes that the Washington monument is settling very slowly—just like a war debtor.

An actual $3 a day will buy more than a theoretical $10 a day.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

SOME AMERICANS are amused over the frequent overthrow of French cabinets. The French, however, are not amused. They are fearful. For a terrific struggle is going on within France.

The Blum Socialists have a decided popular majority—as voters have proved twice. But the French senate still contains a majority of the reactionaries who were voted out of power in the election of deputies (equivalent to our representatives). And the French senate holds a veto power over the chamber of deputies. Thus virtually all progressive measures have been killed by the French senate as either "dictatorial" or "inflationary."

(Does that bear some resemblance to the situation in the United States?)

The French constitution provides for the senate to change composition very slowly and then not by an actual direct vote, as in the United States.

The senate can continue to overthrow governments until it forces the kind on the people that it desires—and not what the people voted for. And that kind will place France's so-called 100 wealthiest familes back into power.

In brief, the French people may have a Fascistic government forced on them—and thus the last large democracy on the European continent may be "conquered" against its will and without a shot from the outside.

* * *

LIBERTY INGRAINED

Liberty in France, however, is ingrained. People do not surrender so easily as they do in Germany, or Austria, or Poland or Hungary.

Leon Blum, the premier who went under again, is a symbol of liberty. And through his life he never has ceased to challenge the foes of liberty.

Read this dispatch from Paris of Blum's last words as premier:

"Blum challenged the right of the senate to cause his government's downfall. He said that the majority supporting him in the chamber of deputies was 'founded on the masses of this country in a movement of great scope.'

"He declared it 'improper that the constitution should give the upper house the same rights as the chamber elected by universal suffrage. The working class has awakened to its right'."

* * *

WHERE WILL IT END?

Again we ask, "Where Will Fascism end?"

It may be ending now, when seeming to be at the apex of its growth. For tyrants become reckless of their power when they have reached a peak—and the deluded peoples awaken to their plight.

One may see, within the next 10 years, a Socialist Germany join hands with a Socialist France. Why? If the French people, too, should become oppressed, then the French and the German masses would have something in common for the first time in generations.

* * *

THE WOBBLY FRANC

France's troubles are largely pecuniary. She is penniless and, her governments, unlike the totalitarian governments, have no means of taxing by virtual seizure.

France lent large sums to various border nations to build up a sympathetic chain of countries as protection. Those nations took the money, burdening France heavily. Then, when France no longer could give, the majority of those countries turned toward Germany, which offered trade. Now France has neither the money nor the protective countries, her debtors have joined her enemies (as usually is the case with debtors), and the franc has plummeted to the bottom.

France, herself virtually is mortgaged to England, and dare not make a move unless England consents.

Yet France remains a great nation—and a mighty fighting nation. Germany soon will have twice her population, but Germany realizes that the French are fighters. They learned how in a revolution, and under two Napoleonic dictators.

SELF PRESERVATION, THE FIRST LAW OF NATURE!

Hostile To Roosevelt 'Arrogance'

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON — Friends of President Roosevelt are asserting that a large bloc of senators and representatives have developed so bittter a personal hostility toward the White House tenant as to guarantee their opposition to any policy he sponsors, regardless of its merits.

They are not speaking of Republican opposition, which is taken for granted; they refer to opposition in Democratic congressional ranks.

Undoubtedly there is a deal of truth in this diagnosis.

The opposition part of it is indisputable. But is it due to PERSONAL hostility to the president? From talks with a great many legislators I incline to think so.

* * *

WHAT CAUSES IT?

How account for it?

An attractive personality is supposed to be something that "F. D." has nothing else to equal.

He appears to retain a great measure of his earlier popularity throughout the country. Straw votes hint that he has lost a bit of it generally, but in no such proportion as he has lost ground on Capitol Hill.

How happens it that the legislators so disproportionately have turned against him?

* * *

IS THIS IT?

The answer appears to be that the national lawmakers, who are nearer to the president than the public is, resent what they describe, on an average, as his "arrogance."

Their view is that they think that he believes that he, rather than they, won the 1932, 1934 and 1936 elections and that most of them got in solely on his coattails. It unquestionably is a fact, too, but the coattail winners dislike having the idea rubbed into them.

And the executive mansion has rubbed it in very thoroughly.

Even a politician, in office, can turn ugly upon having his administration warn him that he will not be re-elected unless he implicitly obeys administration orders.

* * *

TURN ON HIM

President Roosevelt, in short, is not quite so likable at short range, or through one of his emissaries, as he is over the radio.

His tone is mellifluous but his purport can be threatening.

Some congressmen can be bulldozed; some cannot.

Of the latter group (of Democrats) there are almost enough, plus Republicans, to amount to an anti-administration majority. And they are not merely "anti" Roosevelt plans: they ahe savagely anti-Roosevelt, personally.

* * *

DEPRESSION "HELPS" THEM

Of course the business recession has immensely increased anti-Rooseveltian courage.

Plenty of "antis," who would not have dared to peep if times were booming, have the nerve now to be mightily independent.

They surmise that they can be better re-elected as "antis" than as "pros."

Their notion is that, though the New Deal hasn't completely fizzled, at least it is fizzling.

* * *

GIVES THEM CHANCE

All this does not imply that President Roosevelt is any worse disliked than he was previously, but it does imply that such dislike is released on him.

A lot of skepticism is released on him likewise.

I think it is congressional rather than popular dislike. Still, congressmen do try to reflect the sentiments of their respective home constituencies. If they are good reflectors they suggest, by their votes, an anti-Rooseveltian trend, certainly.

* * *

CORRESPONDENTS, TOO?

Does newspaper correspondential sentiment in Washington signify anything?

I know something about that.

It's anti-Rooseveltian arrogance.

But perhaps journalistic sentiment does not signify anything.

It did in Warren G. Harding's and Calvin Coolidge's and Herbert Hoover's time. No newspaperman then was urged to "put on a dunce cap and stand in a corner," as by President Roosevelt.

That is what I mean by Rooseveltian "arrogance."

Timely Editorial

Restraining the Thumbers.

Thumbers and hitch-hikers are a menace not only to the traveling public, but to themselves, and it is well that they have been told by the police safety squad to do their ride-soliciting while standing on the sidewalk, and to keep out of the street.

There are those who are justified, probably, in asking a ride now and then. There are others who are too lazy to walk a few squares. There are still others who want to save what a car, bus or railroad train would cost, and there are, also, peripatetics who are always on the go without definite destination or errand. Some of these last-named would not hesitate to steal from a motorist or even take his car from him.

Probably so long as people drive there will be thumbers, but, in all reason, they should be put under a measure of restraint.—Ohio State Journal.

How It Started

—By JEAN NEWTON

The Question Mark.

Most of us simply accept the question mark, not stopping to think that there might be a reason for this strange, centuries old symbol of interrogation.

It did not just happen indeed, it was designed: although, in its modern form, it is an evolution, or depending upon the point of view, a corruption of a classic abbreviation.

The Latin word for "question" is question, whose first and last letters, q and o, the former superinposed upon the latter, constituted the original interrogation point.

When written fast, the resultant ogogram came, in the course of time, to assume its present appearance.

Listen, World!

They "Wuz Always Licked."

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THEY got Little Joe. 'Twasn't hard. What was the use of fightin' any more, anyway? Even if you wuz only seventeen, you knew when you wuz licked, didn't you?

"We wuz always licked," so Little Joe told them, craning his small withered face up toward the big cop. "Things wuz fixed against us from the start—me n' Gracie—only we didn't know it."

"Always licked." But now, at cruel last, those children know it. And now—perhaps even before the baby is born—we'll have "fixed" Little Joe for keeps and sent his small pile of cinders back to the trembling girl he loved—and for whom he gave his life.

A murderer at seventeen! You can't believe it. There's his picture in the March 1 issue of Official Detective Magazine—Francis Roberts' quietly awful story. But, even looking at the picture, you can't believe it. That pitiful, half pint kid—a killer! Little Joe himself can't believe it. It still seems part of that bad dream he's lived in all his life . . . He n' his Gracie . . . ever since the two were born, in the same year, down in New York's Greenwich Village.

Boozing, brawling Renwick Street . . . not much of a chance for anyone there. Never enough to eat . . . nor enough room to sleep . . . no place to go but the streets. But always they'd had each other, Joe n' Gracie. Loving each other even before they knew what loving meant.

"Some day, babe, when I get a job!" It's Little Joe talking—quavering in that flat, licked drone that sounds as if he were a hundred. Talking at ten — at twelve — at fifteen. And Gracie listening, adoring. "When I get a job—"

But there weren't any jobs for either of them, no matter how hard they tried. Not even at Welfare—"'cause they can't help you if you're living at home."

"N' then"—Little Joe's voice gulps yet with the terror of it—"N' then Gracie tol' me we wuz going to have a baby. I near went crazy! My Gracie! I hadda have a job . . . I hadda!—I could marry her all right, n' I did. But how wuz I goin' to get all the other things Gracie'd need? There was Gracie, n' the baby comin' nearer every day, and there wasn't nuttin' I could do . . . nuttin'!

"So then one day I came home n' there was a lotta people round the place, n' they told me Gracie had tried to kill herself. Locked the door n' turned on the gas and . . . But they'd got her in time . . . Well, then I guess I went plumb nuts all right. I'd tried everything . . . everything. Looked for a job . . . n' begged . . . and even tried to steal. But I wasn't no good at none of it. What I wanted—honest—was a job. Only there wasn't no jobs. 'N so—And there was Gracie."

And so, when the street was flooded with noise, Little Joe crept into Old Martha's coffee and sandwich shop. And while Old Martha was puttering around in back, making the coffee, Little Joe slid near and nearer the cash drawer . . . palms sweating, eyes on the black smear of fear . . . near and nearer—

Then there was a crash! And Old Martha was upon him, screeching as only Old Martha could screech . . . with a great knife waving, whirling, stabbing through the air—

And Little Joe ducking, dodging, battling with that knife . . . battling for his life . . . his weak young hands clutching frantically at her hard old ones . . . dragging, desperately, down and away from the stabbing blade—

Until something fell . . . slobbering and clucked and gurgled and then lay still, with a thick, gummy crimson oozing from its throat.

And far down the street, knife forgotten, cap forgotten, Little Joe was pounding, panting, racing to find Gracie . . . to do whatever Gracie should tell him to do.

So that's how they got Little Joe—Little Joe, who did it.

But did Little Joe really do it? And when we strap his dwarfed, childish body on "the hot seat," will we be roasting the RIGHT ONE?

OR WILL THE "RIGHT ONE" BE BREAKFASTING QUIETLY AT HOME IN A SUNNY NOOK . . . OR WALKING PEACEFULLY TO CHURCH THROUGH THE FOAMING FRAGRANCE OF SPRING . . .

"We wuz always licked." There, though he does not realize it, stands Little Joe's terrible arraignment of our human race.

And over two thousand years, above the crippling congestion of Renwick Street and the cruel conventions of our courts and legislatures, comes this pitiful antiphony—

"FATHER, FORGIVE THEM, FOR THEY KNOW NOT WHAT THEY DO!"

But when . . . when . . . WHEN must an "always licked" child be burned . . . or a gentle young Savior die . . . because WE, the stupid, the smug and safe, refuse to face "WHAT WE DO?"

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Milton Shubert and John Golden will not thank me for airing these private little didoes of theirs. But I am convinced they should be told because (a) they denote unselfishness, which is alien to Broadway, (b) they concern sums of money advanced which the men never expected to get back, and (c) they are about free men and free souls, who are not subservient to the almighty dollar.

Shubert is a producer through which much of Broadway's entertainment is distilled. He gets from 30 to 40 plays a week. Most of them are heaved into the wastebasket, which is another way of saying they are returned to their owners, but occasionally he likes one well enough to risk a bankroll.

* * *

NOT long ago a manuscript bobbed up that attracted his attention. It was not a good script; mechanically, it was much awry. But he liked the way the author wrote, and he decided the fellow needed more than anything else to familiarize himself with the theater.

So he sent for him. "No, I haven't seen very many plays," he admitted. "They cost money; I haven't much left over for entertainment."

"Well," Shubert told him, "this play is no good, but you can write, and I think what you need is to learn the mechanics of the theater. And so I am going to send you to every play in town and to every opening for the rest of the season. So that you can study and learn. If it helps you, swell; if it doesn't, nothing's lost. That's all, now, and here is your play."

This author is still catching up on missing dramas, and some day he'll turn out one of his own. And when he does it seems to me that luck and Milton Shubert will have had their inning.

* * *

A stranger walked into his office and told him he wanted to write a book. But the economic pressure was too much for him—it had him worried and down. When he slaved all day and commuted vast distances to his inexpensive home, all his energy was used up. Would Mr. Golden help him?

Well, Golden had never seen the man. But he inquired about his habits, and he looked at part of the manuscript which the fellow had with him.

"Come see me tomorrow," Golden said, and hurried out to lunch.

Next day the young man returned to find a gruff Golden glaring at him from behind his desk.

"Sit down," he said. "I've been thinking about you. In the south of France you can live for $15 or $20 a week. And it's quiet there and restful. Here's a steamship ticket and $500, and now I've got to go out. So long."

All this happened some time ago. However, it hasn't been so many months since the young man walked into Golden's office and placed $500 on the desk, in cash. He doesn't want his name or his book mentioned, and so it is withheld. But he never could have scored a bullseye without a friendly boost from John Golden.

What It Means:

RFC's Billion and a Half.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY

WASHINGTON—The headlines tell you that congress is authorizing the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to fight the business slump by lending a billion and a half dollars to deserving states, cities, private corporations and business men.

But you can take it from Chairman Jesse Jones that the RFC isn't going to sling a billion and a half dollars across the nation's financial landscape, willy nilly, and expect a quick harvest of prosperity.

* * *

Not All at Once.

IN FACT, Chairman Jones thinks it will lend a scant fraction of a billion and a half dollars during the next year.

Then why did the administration back such a law? And why should congress pass it with lightning speed?

Plain-spoken Jesse Jones tells you in his Texas drawl that the new law:

1. Responds to demands from all business for a more sympathetic attitude in Washington.
2. Answers the recent plea of the little business men's conference for long-term federal loans—loans they can't swing in banks because such deals tie up money too long for the bank's peace of mind.
3. Acts as a financial life preserver whose mere presence on the business boat may inspire the passengers with confidence.

"If a going concern knows money is ready and waiting in Washington," explains Jones, "maybe a loan won't be as important as it seemed before the federal purse strings were loosened.

"Then, again, the nation might snap out of this recession in a comparatively short time. After all, there's no true basis for a depression now, as there was in 1929.

"We need government and business co-operation."

Co-operation, in the Jones view, should help restore confidence, and confidence will lead people to buy what they want and need. And when people buy, business men will get orders for their goods.

* * *

The Real Worry.

AS A MATTER of fact," says the man who has made several good-sized fortunes, "boil this thing down, and your typical business man is worrying more right now about orders than he is about loans.

"Unless a business has orders, a loan might prove to be a serious drag. Take a solvent business man without any orders. Give him a loan, put his people to work and turn out goods. He will pile up the goods on his shelves, and pay interest on the loans that produced the goods. What's missing in this picture is orders for goods.

"Now, take it the other way around. Give a man orders for his goods. The plant is there. The motors are ready to turn over, and the workers want a job. The logical thing to do is fill those orders and get a turnover started. Later is time enough to think of expansion, repairs, equipment, and the like."

* * *

Like PWA Loans.

AND what about loans for public institutions?

"That was put in the loan bill so as to resume the kind of lending PWA was doing a couple of years ago," Jones explains. "When PWA stopped making loans to states, municipalities and other subdivisions of government for self-liquidating projects, such as sewerage plants, and the like, many applications for loans were on file. We just thought some of these states or cities might want to renew their applications for loans. If they show us they can pay us back in a reasonable time, they'll get the money.

"The whole idea of both types of loan is to put people back to work. Every little bit helps, even though I am quite sure we won't use up this year the billion and a half dollars we have available, because we're not lending money on hope. It takes a sound business to get RFC money under this law."

SUES KIN OVER USE OF NAME

Coal Dealer Seeks to Restrain Brother, Charges 2 Firms Confusing to Public.

Two brothers were involved in a common pleas court action today over the use of their family name by their respective coal companies.

A suit seeking to restrain Clarence Estes and Henry Carew from doing business under the name of the Estes Coal company was filed by G. C. Estes, general manager of the Estes Coal and Ice, Inc., 575 North Main street.

Contending that the two firm names are confusing to the public and have resulted in the loss of business by his company, the plaintiff asks the court to enjoin the defendants from using the word "Estes" in connection with their business.

He also charges that the defendants have knowingly accepted orders for coal intended for his firm and have intentionally "misled" customers into believing that their firm is the same as the Estes Coal and Ice, Inc., which was established four years ago.

The petition states that the defendants formed a partnership about two months ago, adopting the name of his company and advertising it to the public.

Collegians In Religious Play

A cast of 12 students from the Collegiate Players group of Heidelberg college will present the religious play, "St. Claudia," at 8 p. m. Wednesday at Central Methodist church.

Cast in leading roles in the play will be Robert Allman, Tiffin, Barbara Esterly, North Baltimore and Daun Spake, Akron. Allman will be seen in the role of Pilate, Miss Esterly will portray Claudia and Miss Spade will be seen in the role of Mary. A scene from the play is shown above.

"St. Claudia" is a dramatization of events occurring during the life of Christ. It centers about the struggle in the home of Pilate, which finally results in the conversion of Claudia, the wife of Pilate, to the cause of Jesus.

The drama has been presented by practically the same cast more than 50 times during a three-year period.

The woman who says that she wouldn't trust the best man on earth has usually trusted one that was no good.

WENDEL SUES EX-GOVERNOR

Jersey Executive Named In $450,000 Suit Brought by Kidnap, Torture Victim.

NEWARK, N. J. — (INS) — Ex-Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, has been named a co-defendant in a $450,000 damage suit filed in federal court by Paul H. Wendel who was kidnaped and tortured into making a false confession to the abduction of Charles A. Lindberg, jr.

The former Trenton attorney alleges that his health has been affected permanently by the torturing and accuses Hoffman of being one of the conspirators against him.

Wendel also is suing Ellis H. Parker, sr., former chief of Burlington county detectives; Ellis H. Parker, jr., his son; Mrs. Anna Bading, secretary to the elder Parker; Gustav Lockwood, state motor vehicle inspector; Dr. Carroll T. Jones, superintendent of the state home for the feeble minded at New Lisbon, N. J., and chief of detectives James S. Kirkham of Mercer county.

The Parkers are now at liberty on bail awaiting disposition of their appeal to the U. S. circuit court from kidnaping convictions in the Wendel case.

DEATH CLAIMS N. C. IRVIN, 65, LUCAS FARMER

Heart Attack While Cutting Wood Fatal to Native of Monroe Township.

LUCAS—A heart attack was given as the cause of the death of Norman C. Irvin, 65, well known Lucas citizen, who died suddenly Monday afternoon while he was at work in a woods in eastern Monroe township near Perrysville.

Mr. Irvin, who had gone to the farm with John Fyffe, of Lucas, to cut wood, collapsed shortly after they had started work. Fyffe ran to the Howard Wigton home a short distance away and summoned aid, but Mr. Irvin was dead when a Perrysville physician arrived. The body was later removed to the Byerly funeral home at Lucas.

Born June 2, 1873, on the farm where he died, Mr. Irvin was a life-long resident of Monroe township. For a number of years he occupied a farm in the Mt. Zion community, later moving to a farm near Pin Hook. For several years he had resided in Lucas.

For the past two years Mr. Irvin had been employed as the courier of mails between the Lucas and Mansfield post offices.

A long-time member of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Mr. Irvin has served many years as a member of the church council and as benevolence treasurer.

Funeral services will be held from the family home in Lucas Wednesday afternoon at 2:30, with Rev. Carl Driscoll, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church, officiating. Burial will be made in the Mansfield cemetery.

ATTEND Y. W. CONFERENCE

ASHLAND—Eleven members of the retiring and the new cabinets of the Y. W. C. A. of Ashland college and two faculty advisors, Mrs. L. E. Lindower and Mrs. M. P. Puterbaugh, attended the district Y. W. C. A. meeting held last week-end at Bluffton college.

A Farmer's Diary

April 11.

THIS evening I listened to the patter of our collie's feet upon the spacious porch. I would know those footsteps in China. They are familiar—so much so that I know whether he is tired or happy, or just hoping for a romp with the children

When but a lad of ten my father took me along to market in the old-time buggy. He would tie the horse to one accustomed hitching post, leave me in the buggy and walk about to the various groceries to sell his produce. I sat quietly and listened to the sound of footsteps going on the pavement I learned to recognize by sound the happy dancing feet of youth the solid, sober step of middleage the faltering uncertain gait of the aged

I knew my father's footfalls long before he turned the corner where I could see him This was a welcome sound for often I waited more than an hour The horse enjoyed the meeting, too, for he always whinnied his approval with ears set forward, and emphasis of pawing forefoot

I know the footsteps of each child at home. They are no different to the casual ear—but listen carefully. How soon one knows each individual gait, can discern their moods, delights, regrets, weariness and anger.

In our natural steps are written character and poise, strength of manhood, ambition, confidence that brings the foot down firmly—a manly stride that always keeps advancing.

NEW DEAL PRESCRIPTION WORKS, CURES ISLANDS' ECONOMIC ILLS

By United Press

WASHINGTON—The New Deal prescription of "rum and romance" for the economic ills of the Virgin Islands is proving successful, interior department officials disclosed today.

Three years ago Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes began advertising the islands as a Garden of Eden, the ideal spot for wonderful romance Simultaneously rum production was increased.

The islands never have been self-supporting since their purchase from Denmark in 1917 for $25,000,000 many officials have regarded them as something of a "problem child" both economically and politically.

Lawrence W. Cramer, youthful governor of the islands since 1935, came here to report today to Ickes that the "rum and romance" prescription already has worked wonders for the islands.

"It's wonderful," Cramer said, "last year 10,000 tourists came to the islands and we exported 150,000 gallons of rum. The tourists, too, drank a lot of rum."

Romance—and native income—was increased by mixing of rum and tourists, Cramer indicated.

The United States purchased the islands for "negative strategic purposes," Cramer said, when it was feared that Germany might seize them as a submarine base for operation against American shipping during the World war.

Their only strategic value, he said, is a coaling base. The group is composed of three large islands —St. Croix, St. Thomas and St. John—and about 50 small islands. The total area is about 132 square miles.

The population has almost doubled during the last 21 years, not totaling 25,000. The United States has built roads and schools. About 90 per cent of the inhabitants have been taught to read and write.

YOU CAN DEPEND ON CHAMPIONS

For Better Engine Performance

WHEN YOUR CAR was delivered by your dealer, it was as dependable in speed, power, acceleration and economy, as careful, painstaking engineering could make it. If you service it regularly and check and clean spark plugs when you change oil, it will continue to maintain that dependability.

For maximum results, it is recommended that new Champion Spark Plugs be installed every 10,000 miles. The saving in gas and oil will soon pay their cost. Insist on Champions because you can depend on them to render better service over a longer period than any others. See your Champion Spark Plug dealer this week.

sand in 1936. The birth rate rose to 20.6 per thousand in 1937 as compared with 19.2 in 1936.

Child Diseases Drop.

Dr. Rehder said that the number of cummunicable diseases listed in 1937 was the lowest in the past five years, with the greatest decrease being shown in typhoid fever. Only six cases of the disease were reported in 1937 as compared with 145 cases during the 1936 epidemic.

The report showed that 262 cases of communicable diseases were reported during the year while there were 372 in 1936, and 1,170 during 1930.

The commissioner added there were 2,410 visits to veneral clinics for diagnosis and treatment last year, an increase of nearly 10 times the number of visits recorded in 1930.

The report showed that maternity cases being hospitalized also showed a favorable increase with 591 or 75 per cent of the 779 births in 1937 hospitalized as compared with 65 per cent in 1936.

In their daily visits to the various schools in the city, health department nurses attended 18,149 children during the past year. Of that number 8,511 received attention for communicable diseases while 1,829 children were examined for dental defects, of which 1,200 were found in need of treatment, the report said.

The report also said that the plumbing department in its first year of operation showed a profit of $876. Thirty licenses issued brought in $1,500 and 612 applications for permite totaled $1,634.75 for a total of $3,134.75. Expenses were listed at $2,258.

In a monthly report to the board of health last night, Dr. Rehder listed contagious diseases for March at 50 per cent over the previous month. Last month when the measles outbreak was at its height a total of 317 cases were reported as compared with 187 for February, and more than 10 times the number in January when 30 cases were reported.

The report also revealed that a decided increase was shown in chickenpox with 21 cases reported as against none for the previous month, and 21 cases of scarlet fever as compared with 9 for February.

Births and deaths for the past month soared to a new high for the year. Last month 116 children were born in the city as compared with 51 in February, while deaths rose to 77 for March as compared to the 39 for the month previous.

STORM BREWING ON RECOVERY

Capital Hears Garner to Fight Spending Program; New Deal Foes Cheered.

yesterday from Secretary Morgenthau, who had criticized such a program last Nov. 10. Since then, the treasury head told reporters, conditions have changed radically.

Morgenthau said that business conditions, which he described as worse than in February, call "for some kind of government aid."

In the background of the fight over pump-priming was the defeat in the house last week of the administration's reorganization bill. That blow to a basic measure of the president's legislative program stiffened opposition of conservatives to almost any new administration proposals.

Informed persons predicted the president would recommend a relief appropriation of $1,250,000,000 for the first seven months of the new fiscal year beginning July 1. This created speculation that the total relief outlay for the year might reach $2,000,000,000.

Should it approximate that figure, the administration's relief and recovery program probably would involve about $5,000,000,000, including the $1,500,000,000 being made available to the reconstruction finance corporation for business loans and the expected public works program of about $1,500,000,000.

One senator who attended Mr. Roosevelt's conference on recovery and relief yesterday said the president had not decided finally on a pump-priming program, but if it is approved, it appears certain to take some form of federally financed construction by cities and states.

As described by persons close to the White House, the plan Mr. Roosevelt is most likely to recommend calls for federal bond issues to raise the $1,500,000,000, which would be loaned to cities and states without interest for a 50-year period.

Officials estimate the money which the borrowers would save by not having to pay interest would be approximately equal to a 45 per cent outright grant.

Under the old public works program, the cities and states had to put up 55 per cent of the cost of a project and the federal government contributed 45 per cent.

No Recriminations!

Dear Sam

Thanks for the fine fight. Will you also thank the Speaker and the others.

The reorganization bill is intended to simplify and improve the public service. With this single objective in view, I have given it my earnest approval.

The question presented is solely one of policy. Therefore, the legislative developments of yesterday offer no occasion for personal recrimination, and there should be none.

Very sincerely yours,

Franklin D. Roosevelt

In the lobby is an unusual flower display canned foods, bread and rolls and several items of furniture that are made in Mansfield.

Miss Ruth Chambers, food expert in charge of the school, announced at the beginning of the opening session that arrangements had been made with meat dealers participating in the cooking school to feature the special cuts she is using during the week, so that housewives who want to try out the new dishes and new methods of meat cookery may obtain these cuts.

Miss Chambers demonstrated a number of new dishes that had housewives wondering if the trick can be done at home as easily—and with the same happy results—as on the lecture platform. There was French Fried liver with French fried onions; a blue plum cobbler, and a ham slice with rice, which sounded like something for the tired business man.

She also gave her own recipe and method of making biscuit mixture and pie crust, and for several other meat dishes with complementary foods.

The recipe booklets contained all of the recipes for today's demonstration, as well as a number of others not demonstrated.

At the conclusion of the demonstrations, a number of ushers went to the stage and paraded through the theater with mirror-backed trays on which were displayed the dishes prepared by Miss Chambers.

The cooking school will be held at the same time—9:15 to 11 a. m.—every day through Friday, with new recipes each day.

SOUTHERN CITY TO GET SUSPECT

SHELBY—Jack Aclin, who was arrested by Shelby police Sunday, will be returned to South Greenville, S. C., Police Chief Leroy Coffey said today. Aclin is wanted by that state on a safe cracking and burglary charge, Coffey said. An officer of the South Carolina city is expected Thursday to return the suspect, who was identified by police here by his finger prints.

TO PRESENT PLAY

SHELBY—Plans are being completed this month by the members of the eighth grade English classes for the presentation of the play, "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer," to be given on May 17.

COMPLETE WORK

WPA Workers Finish Clark Avenue Sewer Project.

SHELBY—Work had been completed today on the sanitary sewer on Clark avenue where approximately 450 feet of tile were laid as part of this city's $65,846 WPA street and sidewalk project which employes nearly 100 men, city officials announced.

Also completed on the same project was a storm sewer on Simeon avenue, from Mack avenue to the Blackfork river, where 700 feet of tile were laid, officials stated. Construction of a 10-inch water line on Mohican street, from West Smiley avenue to Whitney avenue, is under way.

Relaying of sidewalks is expected to be started by two crews this week on a city-wide sidewalk improvement program which will include nearly two miles of new sidewalks on 25 different streets at an approximate cost of $7,700.

CENTRAL SCHOOL GIVES PROGRAM

SHELBY—The third in the series of variety programs sponsored by the Shelby grade schools will be presented April 20 at the high school by the upper grades of Central school, L. D. Reynolds, principal, said today.

The program will include plays, readings and other entertinment, with Cairns and Clark schools of Jackson township assisting.

SOCIETY HONORS DORCAS CLASS

SHELBY—Members of the Dorcas class of the First Lutheran church will be the honored guests at 2:30 p. m. Wednesday when the Woman's Missionary society holds its special meeting at the church parlors with Mrs. Henry Sutter and Mrs. C. O. Deardorf in charge of the devotions.

"The Power of Islam," will be the topic for discussion which will be followed by a short travel talk by Mrs. U. S. Trimble. Tea will be served at the close of the meeting by Mrs. D. B. Young.

VISIT REFORMATORY

SHELBY—Approximately fifty members of the schoolbay patrol will visit the Mansfield reformatory April 19, according to L. D. Reynolds, faculty supervisor.

SHELBY OPENS WPA PROGRAM

SHELBY — This city's $5,510 WPA project for the codification of the city ordinances and other clerical work will be opened here Thursday at the city hall, according to city officials today.

The project is set up so the city will pay $550 for rental and materials, while WPA furnishes $4,960 for labor. Approximately 14 persons will be employed on the project and will compile the information at the city hall. All existing city ordinances will be classified and bound in a single volume.

PERRYSVILLE — In a speed test conducted in the shorthand class of the Perrysville high school recently Eva Jean Crawford won the high honor for speed, while Ruth Myers scored a perfect grade for accuracy. Others who scored high in the test were Twyla McClure and Katherine Niman.

MORE RECIPES ON TAP FOR 2ND DAY'S SESSION

Miss Chambers Demonstrates New Dishes Tomorrow at 'Food Fashion Revue.'

Fully as interesting as the recipes which were demonstrated today at The News-Journal's cooking school, will be those offered at the second session tomorrow by Miss Ruth Chambers, director of the school.

In the booklets which are given to every woman attending each session, these recipes are given in detail, as well as many others which Miss Chambers considers practical, but which are not demonstrated because of limited time. Each day's recipes are contained in separate booklets.

Recipes for the dishes which will be demonstrated Wednesday are given below:

ROAST BEEF SUPERB

Select a two or three standing rib roast. Wipe with a damp cloth and rub with salt and pepper. Place the roast in a dripping pan with the fat side up. Make a small incision through the fat covering and insert a roast-meat thermometer so that the bulb reaches the center of the roast. Do not cover the roast and do not add any water. Place the meat in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) and roast to the desired degree of doneness. The roast-meat thermometer will register 140 degrees F for a rare roast; 160 degrees F for a medium roast, and 170 degrees F for a well-done roast. Allow 19-20 minutes to the pound for cooking a rare roast, 22-25 minutes to the pound for a medium, and 27-30 minutes to the pound for a well-done roast. A four pound roast will serve 6-8 people.

PORK STEAKS WITH CREOLE SAUCE

6 pork shoulder steaks
Salt and pepper

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth. Brown in hot skillet in fat which cooks from the meat. Season. Cover with Creole Sauce. Cook in moderate oven (350 degrees F) for one hour. Serves 6.

Creole Sauce.

¼ cup grated onion
1 minced clove garlic
½ tablespoon chopped parsley
½ cup sliced mushrooms
¼ cup minced green pepper
1 tablespoon lard
1 tablespoon flour
2 cups tomato juice
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar
½ cup sliced stuffed olives

Cook the chopped vegetables in the lard until brown. Add the flour and stir until smooth. Gradually add the tomato juice and seasonings. Pour over pork steaks.

GOLDEN GLORY CAKE

4½ cups cake flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1½ teaspoons salt
1 cup lard
2⅔ cups sugar
4 egg yolks
1½ cups canned unsweetened pineapple juice
1½ teaspoons vanilla
4 egg whites

Sift flour, measure and sift again with the baking powder and salt. Cream lard, gradually add the sugar and cream thoroughly. Add unbeaten egg yolks and beat well. Alternately add the sifted dry ingredients with the pineapple juice. Add vanilla. Mix until smooth. Fold in the egg whites beaten until stiff but not dry. Bake in three 8-inch layers in a moderately hot oven (375 degrees F) for 25 to 30 minutes.

Golden Glory Icing.

¼ cup butter
¼ teaspoon salt
2 egg yolks
¼ cup canned crushed pineapple
6 cups sifted confectioner's sugar
¼ cup pineapple juice

Cream butter and salt with egg yolks. Add well drained pineapple and sugar. Add pineapple juice gradually to make proper consistency.

PIE MIX

6 cups flour
4 teaspoons salt
2 cups lard

Sift flour, measure and add salt. Cut lard into flour and salt with a fork or pastry blender until the crumbs are course and granular. Cover and place in refrigerator until ready to use.

THE PERFECT CUSTARD PIE

1½ cups Pie Mix
½ tablespoons ice water

Add water to pie mix, small amount at a time, mixing quickly and evenly through the flour and lard until the dough just holds in a ball. Roll on slightly floured board, line pie pan, making a heavy rim around the edge.

Filling.

2 cups milk
3 eggs
⅓ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg

Scald the milk. Beat eggs slightly and add sugar and salt. Stir constantly while adding the hot milk. Pour into pie crust. Sprinkle with nutmeg. Bake in a hot oven (435 degrees F) for 10 minutes, then reduce heat and finish in moderate oven (350 degrees F) for 25 minutes. Makes one 9-inch pie.

LEG OF LAMB MODERNE

Wipe meat with a damp cloth. Season with salt and pepper and rub with garlic, if desired. Place skin side down on a rack in an open pan. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (300 degrees F) until the desired degree of doneness is reached. If a roast-meat thermometer is used it should register 175 degrees F. for medium-done lamb, and 180 degrees F. for well-done lamb. Allow approximately 30-35 minutes to the pound. A six pound leg of lamb will serve 6-8.

A CRESCENT OF LIVER

Milk
3 cups Homemade Biscuit Mixture
4 slices bacon

Add enough milk to the homemade biscuit mixture to make a soft dough. Roll to one-fourth inch thickness. Spread with cooled liver mixture, allowing one inch around the edge for overlapping. Roll like a jelly roll. Brush edges with water and pinch together. Slide the roll onto a cookie sheet and form a crescent. Sprinkle with finely chopped uncooked bacon. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F) for 25 to 30 minutes. Serve with hot undiluted tomato soup or gravy. Serves 6.

Liver Filling.

1½ cups cooked liver
½ medium onion
⅛ teaspoon marjoram
½ teaspoon celery salt
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
½ cup tomato pulp

Grind the cooked liver and onion together. Add other ingredients. Cook slowly until thick. Cool.

BANANA SCALLOPS

1 egg
1½ teaspoon salt
6 bananas
¾ cup fine cornflakes, bread or cracker crumbs or cornmeal

Beat egg and add salt. Slice peeled bananas crosswise into one-inch thick pieces. Dip into egg and roll in crumbs or cornmeal. Deep-fat fry in a kettle of lard at a temperature of 375 degrees F for 1½ to 2 minutes or until brown and tender. Drain on absorbent paper. Serve very hot.

FRENCH FRIED CAULIFLOWER

1 medium sized head cauliflower
Dry bread crumbs
1 egg
2 tablespoons cold water

Break the cauliflower into flowerets and cook gently for 10 minutes. Drain. Roll in bread crumbs, then in the mixture of egg and water and again in crumbs. Fry in deep hot lard at 375 degrees F until browned. Drain on absorbent paper. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and serve very hot.

THE KING OF STEAKS

Have porterhouse steak cut one to two inches thick. Wipe with a damp cloth. Preheat the broiler. Place steak on center of broiler rack allowing three inches between the surface of the meat and the source of heat. When steak is nicely browned on one side, it will be about half done; season, turn, and brown on the other side. Only one turning is necessary. For a two-inch steak allow 35 to 40 minutes to be medium done. Serves 3-4.

VEAL SUPREME

2 pounds veal shoulder, diced
2 tablespoons lard
1 clove garlic
½ cup water
½ pound noodles
¼ pound almonds
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon poppy seeds

Brown veal in hot lard with garlic. Remove garlic clove. Add water, cover and simmer until tender, 30 to 45 minutes. Cook noodles in boiling salted water for 20 minutes. Drain. Blanch the almonds, slice lengthwise into thin strips. Brown in butter and add to the noodles. Mix thoroughly and arrange in a ring on a large platter. Fill the center with the cooked veal mixture, pour liquid from the veal over the noodles and sprinkle with poppy seeds.

LAYERED PEACH AND RASPBERRY MOLD

2 packages raspberry gelatin
2 pints hot water
1 No. 2½ can sliced peaches
1 can red raspberries

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Cool. Arrange sliced peaches in loaf pan. Pour half the gelatin mixture over the peaches. Set in refrigerator to chill. Mix well drained raspberries with rest of gelatin and when quite thick pour over first layer. Chill until firm. Unmold on oval tray. Serve either as a salad or a dessert. Serves 12.

FELT LIKE I'D BEEN THROUGH A THRASHING MACHINE

World's Tonic Relieved Occasional Constipation—Related Symptoms Disappear.

An odd comparison but yet Mrs. Harriett Ellis of 2424 Newton St., Akron, Ohio, insists that these were her feelings before she started taking the now famous medicine World's Tonic.

"Every morning I got up feeling like I had been drawn through a thrashing machine. Every muscle would be sore and stiff and my hip would pain terribly. My housework was neglected because I had neither the will nor energy to get started. My stomach was upset and my skin was dull and muddy looking. After meals I wasn't worth a thing. I'd feel uncomfortable and sleepy. Often I was so dizzy and faint that I'd have to lie down and rest. I couldn't get rid of a lump in my throat. Straining because of ever present constipation helped aggravate a piles condition and all told, I felt years older than my age.

"I was in Eckerd's Drug Store one day and bought a bottle of World's Tonic. This brought constipation relief at once and from then on I can say never did anything help me so quickly. Now I feel years younger instead of older than my age. As my stomach was helped the other things were benefited. I can sleep well and tackle my housework with a vim. Women especially should be interested and that's why I felt I should tell how good I think World's Tonic is."

World's Tonic is intended for young and old. Contains no habit forming drugs or narcotics.

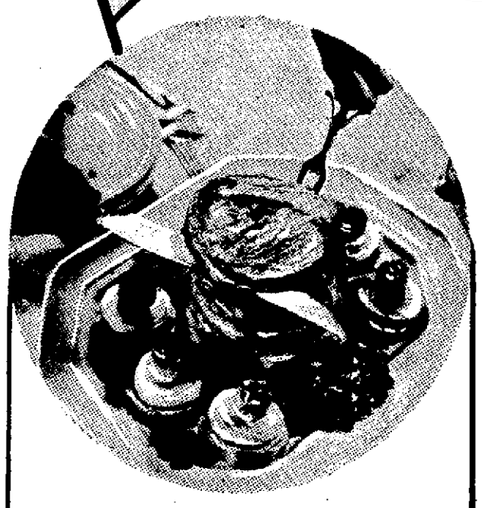
Lesson in Carving

at the

Mansfield News-Journal's Food Fashion Revue Cooking School

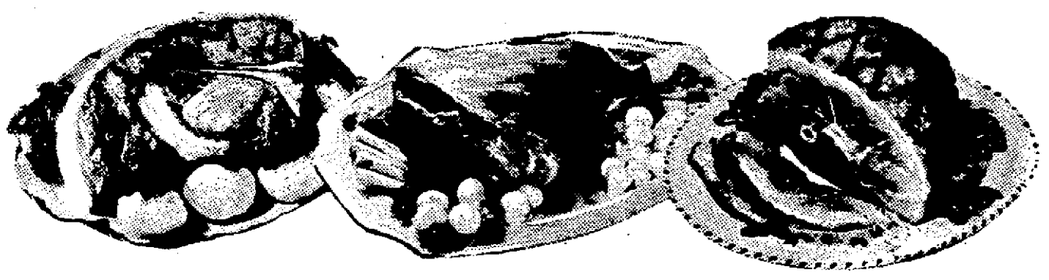


The actual cuts of meat will be used in this demonstration of correct carving methods, so a clear understanding will be assured.

At your house, do you all sit on the edge of the chairs, when Father carves the roast? Do you hold your breath for fear that luscious piece of meat will come skidding off the edge of the platter right into your lap? Do you . . . but enough of this sad picture. Father doesn't like it any better than anyone else, and that's why we have arranged to DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT!

As a special feature of our big FOOD FASHION REVUE Cooking School we shall have a session of scientific but practical instruction on carving. An expert will give general directions for carving large pieces of meat including a standing rib roast, leg of lamb, and ham, and will also show the correct method of carving steaks. The actual cuts of meat will be used in this demonstration to assure a clear understanding.

Mrs. Housewife, if you can have your husband arrange to come to that session, do so. If not, then you must plan to learn all about it yourself, so you can pass the knowledge along to him. Watch for the date of this carving session, so you can take advantage of it.



But the carving lesson will be only one feature of the big cooking school. Every one of the sessions will be so filled with new ideas and new recipes, and with practical information on what is new and up-to-the-minute in foods, that you will want to attend them all. Serve warning now, on your family and on your friends, that you will be "tied up" during the cooking school. Then watch this paper for further news on the FOOD FASHION REVUE Cooking School . . . and mark the dates on your calendar.

Free Recipe Books

A valuable cook book containing the cooking school recipes will be given each day to every woman attending. Each day's booklet contains a chart for beef, pork, lamb or veal showing the location and cooking method of all the different cuts of meat.

Britain and Italy to Sign Friendship Pact Saturday

AGREEMENT TO END QUARREL ON ETHIOPIA

Chamberlain Hopes Relation Will Win Duce From Rome-Berlin Alliance.

(By Associated Press)

Britain and Italy are ready—barring a last minute hitch—to sign on Saturday an agreement patching up the three-year-old quarrel that started with Premier Mussolini's invasion of Ethiopia and continued because of the civil war in Spain.

On the agreement Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain pinned hopes of winning Il Duce from the Rome-Berlin alliance and restoring him as a counterweight to Adolf Hitler's ambitions in central Europe.

The rapid development of negotiations since March 12—when Adolf Hitler proclaimed the annexation of Austria and marched his German troops to the Brenner pass, looking into the Italian Tyrol—encouraged friends of Chamberlain to believe that Mussolini already was losing his taste for diplomatic collaboration with Berlin and genuinely welcomed British friendship.

Looks for Better Bargain.

But opponents at home contended Chamberlain merely was being played off against Berlin and that Mussolini was looking for a better bargaining position with the fuehrer when the latter visits Rome three weeks hence.

Britain has asked the League of Nations to consider freeing its members from their pledge not to recognize Mussolini's conquest of Ethiopia at the council meeting May 9.

Parliamentary quarters in Paris predicted the new "national defense" cabinet of Edouard Daladier would follow Britain's lead in conciliating Italy.

Recognition of the Ethiopian conquest was understood to be a chief point in the new Anglo-Italian friendship accord. Mutual recognition of Italian and British interests in the Mediterranean-Suez canal-Red sea areas; withdrawal of Italian troops from Spain and pledges to halt Italy's anti-British propaganda among the Arabs in the Near East were other points.

Seeks to Check Nazis.

With genuine collaboration with Italy restored, Chamberlain hoped to interpose a check on further Nazi expansion in central Europe, and thus free himself to protect British interests in the Far East.

French and British fears of a Fascist-Nazi threat in Spain, where Gen. Franco forged slowly ahead on the Catalonia front, would be eased.

The hands of Premier Daladier in France would be freed to deal with spreading strikes and an internal financial problem.

Much of the European tension has revolved about the rift between Italy and Britain that began a few months before Mussolini's soldiers began their advance into Ethiopia in October, 1935.

It has been established for some time that Officer Frend Boals, head of the schoolboy patrol, has a way with youngsters, but no one ever suspected until this morning that this influence extended to mere babes in arms. At The News-Journal cooking school at the Ohio theater this morning, the girl attendants were kept pretty busy by an infant-in-arms who wasn't any too happy despite all the feminine attention showered on him. At first sight of Boals in uniform, he let out a glad cry and stretched out his fat arms. Boals "clucked" to him, played with him for a minute and then turned away. A loud howl of misery filled the auditorium—and Boals found himself nursemaid for a determined baby. Must be a gift.

BROKER HOPES TO LEAVE SING SING IN 3 YEARS

Fallen Wall Street Leader to Be Assigned to Manual Labor at N. Y. Prison.

BULLETIN

NEW YORK—(AP)—Richard Whitney, handcuffed to an extortionist and a man convicted of assault, was put aboard a train for Sing Sing today while fully 5,000 men and women, in and around Grand Central station, tried to catch a glimpse of him.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Richard Whitney, who once could borrow $100,000 at a dozen places in Wall street without so much as signing his name, goes to Sing Sing prison today.

Beginning a five to 10 year term for grand larceny, the former president of the New York Stock exchange will be forced to do manual labor, probably for the first time in his life. If his hands ever have been calloused, they got that way from holding a tight rein on a spirited horse while riding to hounds.

Seeks Minimum Term.

Whitney already had started working for the merits by which he hopes to reduce his sentence to the lowest possible minimum—three years and four months. He will have to be a model prisoner in every respect to do it.

His attorney, Charles H. Tuttle, wanted to arrange for him to go to Sing Sing prison alone, but Whitney, grimly true to the code of the sportsman learned at exclusive Groton school and Harvard, said he wanted no favors.

As the result, a prison van will back up to the tombs, the dingy, smelly prison of New York county, and into it, handcuffed together, will be ushered the five-time president of the New York Stock exchange, a man fallen from the highest financial and social station; John Mahoney, 20, a bandit who shot a victim in a holdup, and several burglars. Transported like so many sacks of potatoes to Grand Central station, they will be paraded in shackles through the vast waiting rooms, to the Ossining train for the hour and a half ride up river to the "big house."

FAIR ENOUGH!

Why Not Ask Author of Labor Board Bill About Written Union Contract

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—After five months of hearings in which hundreds of witnesses appeared, the National Labor Relations board has ruled that an employer must not only come to terms with the bargaining agent of his employes but must put the agreement in writing. Formerly it took two to make a bargain, but that principle has been waived in favor of a movement which has ambitions to become a dominant decisive political power.

Now it is held by a decision of a mere board that the bargain must be written down and that lack of responsibility on the part of a union is no excuse for refusal by the employer to bind himself to terms which may not be enforceable on the union.

The board chides the Inland Steel company, defendant in the case, for refusing to treat the union with the same dignity that it would show to another soulless corporation in a complicated business deal but ignores as of no importance the fact that the other soulless corporation may be compelled to observe its contracts or pay for losses resulting from its failure to do so.

* * *

If irresponsibility were a valid reason for an employer's refusal to enter an agreement, says the board, it would be a valid reason for a refusal to deal with the union at all.

That is true, but the law now compels the employer to treat with the union, and from that first compulsion the board has now amplified the law to mean that he must negotiate and agree and post forfeits, including the liberty of company officials, to secure an agreement whose other party has the right to flout the contract at great loss to the employer. The employer is represented in these dealings and in the public imagination by a high-salaried captain of industry, but his name is George Spelvin, average American, and the losses which the union may inflict under the immunity of that irresponsibility which the board so airily disregards must be borne by him. To say it a little more directly, Mr. Legion or Mr. Spelvin, with a little money invested in a soulless corporation, must make a contract, guaranteed by his invested savings, with a political group which carries in its pocket a writ virtually relieveing it of responsibility.

* * *

It would be silly to quarrel with the proposition that any agreement as intricate as an employment contract between a huge company and the workmen ought to be written in precise terms, signed and witnessed, if both parties were equally bound. But those terms would be enforced as written and the labod board, which is always in the union's corner and has yet to be accused of impartiality, would be quick to disallow any attempt by the corporation to read into such an agreement any implied or unwritten extension or evasions of the black-and white provisions.

Yet these amplifications of the law itself constitute just that, and the long and expensive process of hearings and wordy judgments could have been obviated by nothing more than a nickel telephone call to the office of Senator Wagner, of New York, who wrote the law and surely must know what he intended it to mean.

* * *

Senator Wagner is no recluse, and a word from him would clarify the intentions of the act and remove it from the field of mind-reading and guesswork. It does seem odd, however, that he refrained from writing in a definite requirement of written agreements between employers and unions unless he had some studied reasons for this omission and even more curious that he has not been asked to say whether he meant anything that he didn't write.

The Wagner act may have hidden meanings, but it would have been more honest and constructive of the board to say that while agreements obviously should be reduced to writing the irresponsible party should be compelled to assume obligations as binding as those which it demands.

ASKS RIGHT TO RULE BY DECREE

Daladier Seeks Time to Draw Up Financial Bill For French Parliament.

BULLETIN

PARIS—(AP)—The chamber of deputies today gave the new "national defense" government of Edouard Daladier an overwhelming vote of confidence, 576 to 5.

(By United Press)

PARIS—The government of Premier Edouard Daladier asked parliament today for power to rule by decree until July 31 and submit a financial bill seeking wide authority for the government.

The preamble of the bill announced the government's intention of asking an increase of another 10,000,000,000 francs ($310,000,000) in the limit of its borrowings from the Bank of France.

The bill was drawn in the midst of a spreading strike movement which seriously retarded the rearmament program and involved walkouts or sit-down strikes of nearly 150,000 workers.

It was announced that a new defense loan is envisaged, but details were not given.

The bill consisted of a single article calling for power by decree until July 31. It was explained that the program outlined consists strictly of emergency measures and that additional projects will be submitted to parliament later designed to pursue recovery.

PLAN DEBATE ON BILL BANNING U. S. WORKERS AT CONVENTIONS

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—A bill designed to keep government workers out of political conventions held an unexpected place at the top of the senate calendar today, despite objections of Democratic Leader Barkley of Kentucky.

The measure, which Senator Hatch (D-NM) has been advocating for a year, would exclude federal employes from party caucuses, precinct, county or state conventions that nominate a president, vice president or members of congress.

The senate, which usually lets the administration leader arrange its program, voted 40 to 22 late yesterday to take up the bill when it meets Thursday after a two-day recess. Barkley tried to block its consideration, but a sizable bloc of Democrats joined Republicans in over-riding his plea.

Hatch, normally an administration supporter, declared five top-ranking government officials have the power to "pack" a national convention. He listed the five as President Roosevelt, Postmaster General Farley, Secretaries Wallace and Ickes, and Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator.

"Their choice might suit me fine because I have confidence in them," Hatch told the senate. "That does not mean the process is right. I am trying to look ahead. I see the danger, not only to this administration, not only to my particular party, but to all parties."

Barkley replied: "Why not exclude everybody who is employed by anybody who may have any connection with the federal government?"

Hatch consented to an amendment by Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) exempting federal employes chosen at regular public elections. Violations would be punishable by a $1,000 fine, a year in jail, and loss of job.

Hollywood Speaks—

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—If you take a drug called "paradol" your sensations—before you die—will be amazing.

Edward G. Robinson detailed them to his victim, having just "poisoned" Humphrey Bogart with it for a scene in "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse." It was a curious scene, besides. A close-up of Robinson, scientifically intent on the "dying man," the scene operated without benefit of Bogart, whose lines were read by the dialogue director.

After a good stiff drink of this "paradol," however, this is what happens: the room's walls shrink, every object contracts in size, the victim hears a rumbling in his ears, and then—this on testimony of Bogart—you don't hear "very good."

* * *

All this is amazing for two reasons: first, that Robinson seems to know more about it than Bogart, who's supposed to be dying from it; second, there isn't any such drug as "paradol." Dr. Leo M. Schulman, the film's medical adviser, coined the word—because movies mustn't give people ideas. . . .

Cameraman on this film is Tony Gaudio, who's been shooting stars since the Biograph days. Tony's Italian-born, and there's still a bit of it in his speech. But not much, which ought to make this funnier.

Tony was behind the camera when Greta took her first Hollywood tests, and he shot her first two pictures here. In those silent days the players read lines even though there weren't mikes, and Garbo's English was mostly Swedish. Well, Tony left M-G-M, and he hadn't seen Greta in all those years until she was making "Conquest."

She greeted him like an old friend, and then in some amazement cried: "Ah, but Tony! You speak with a dialect!"

* * *

They say there's a recession hereabouts, but Fred MacMurray and Douglas Fairbanks, jr., haven't heard of it. MacMurray technically is in three films at once. Barely finishes "Cocoanut Grove" in time to go into "Sing You Sinners" with Bing Crosby, and all the time he's the lead in "Men With Wings," although they haven't come to his scenes yet. . . . And Fairbanks, doing a $100,000 job with Danielle Darrieux in "The Rage of Paris," does night work on the re-takes of "Having Wonderful Time." . . .

Britain's Beauty Queen, Involved In Death Quiz, To Wed

LONDON — (AP) — Notice was given to the London register office today of the impending marriage of Muriel Oxford, 23, who was "Miss Great Britain" of 1936, to Gilbert A. Evans, 28, London stock broker.

Miss Oxford played a poignant, innocent role a year ago in the mysterious disappearance from the ocean liner Paris of Frank Vosper, British playwright.

Vosper disappeared on March 6, 1937, from the Paris after leaving a party given in Miss Oxford's cabin at the end of a voyage from New York. A coroner's jury at Eastbourne, Eng., returned an open verdict that Vosper's death was "due to drowning after going overboard, but it is impossible to say from the evidence how he got into the water."

Retired Man Spends Time Drinking

By VIRGINIA LEE

"Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do." That seems to be the moral of the story told by A DISGUSTED WIFE. Her husband has retired from business and spends his time at the saloon getting drunk.

He always did drink some, she writes, but now he is disgustingly drunk most of the time, doesn't get home in time for meals, and then comes in and raids the refrigerator. "I get so I just hate to look at him," this wife writes.

Oh, me, these husbands! It is a good job I happen to know some perfectly swell men who are excellent husbands, or this job would make me feel men were pretty awful. But my experience proves very conclusively that there are many unsatisfactory husbands and wives, too, and many more who are simply fine.

What can Disgusted Wife do, I wonder? She can leave him, of course, but they have been mates for many years, their children are all grown and some of them are married, some at home. One thing is clear, there is no use scolding and moaning. If you could have some pleasant little jobs for him to do before he starts for the saloon, something that would really interest him, he might get enough fun out of it that he would not go.

Finds Life Useless.

After working steadily for years I suppose he finds life rather useless, and thinks he is having fun by spending his time drinking. Maybe he will find, after a while, that he isn't getting the satisfaction out of it that he hoped, and stop. Hope that will happen. Help it along all you can by showing your pride in him when he does anything nice, and is on time for meals, etc., and maybe you can get him to do better. As long as you find fault with him he feels mean, knows he is in the wrong, but won't try to reform. Stop it and never say anything to him except it is nice, and he will probably want to do something to make you say more nice things. That is good psychology. Try it.

* * *

"Dear Miss Lee: I am a girl of 18 and would like to know some of my privileges. Can I bring fellows to my home if I still go to high school? My dad said that if a fellow wants to take a girl out he will come over and ask her parents. I think this is very silly, don't you.

"How is a girl supposed to acquire poise if she doesn't go around with young people? My father sems to think that if a girl goes out with a fellow, they have to get married. How can I explain to him that there are some decent fellows in this world? I think my dad means well, but goes about it in the wrong way. How can I try to make him see things my way?

"HI LASSIE."

Your father has rather old-fashioned notions, Lassie, but I think he is a pretty swell person, if you ask me. I agree with him that boys who want to take you out should come to your house and meet your parents. If they are not willing to do that it would seem as if there must be something wrong with them.

You should go out with other young people and will acquire poise in that way, and you can tell your dad of the boys who like you and show him that it is not modern to plan marriage until you have had a chance to get to know a boy and he you. He knows there are decent fellows, only he is anxious for your safety. I feel sure that if you confide in your dad and tell him frankly how you feel about things you can persuade him to do as you wish, if you are not unreasonable.

* * *

INNOCENT I.: I think the fact that this boy you "dearly love" demands "certain privileges," indicates clearly that he doesn't care for you as much as you do for him. You would do nothing to hurt him, even the tiniest little bit, would you? I can hear you say "no" most emphatically. Yet he would hurt you; make you cheap so that neither he nor any other man would want you for his wife and the mother of his children. He would hurt you spiritually, too, for you would carry a sense of guilt with you always, and would feel you were damaged.

A man who loves a woman, I reiterate as I have so many times in this column, will protect her from even his own passions. He most certainly will not tempt her to do that which he knows will injure her physically, mentally and morally.

* * *

J. M. wrote to me complaining of the modern girl, and his letter has had several answers. He says K. S. has the wrong impression if she thinks he goes with girls who are not "nice." If there ARE nice girls in the world, where are they? he queries. He is not setting himself up as faultless, he explains. He, too, has his faults, and he is not a prude. But WHERE are the nice girls?

Well, K. S. is one, so there are some. Better take a lantern, like Diogenes, and set out to find them, son. I bet you won't have to hunt very long.

* * *

C. O.: There was no self-addressed, stamped envelope in your letter, my boy. Did you put one in or did you forget it, as we all do so often? However, I do not have the real name or address of the person for whom you inquire, so cannot send it to you. She does not live in your town, however.

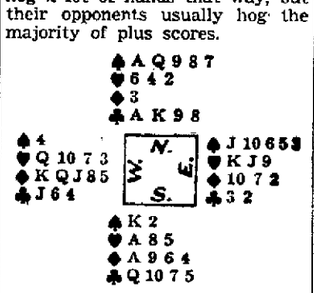
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

PITY THE HAND HOG

SOME PLAYERS just won't let their partners play a hand unless they have to. They will bid and rebid their own declarations regardless of hemlock and high water, just as if they considered themselves as holding a corner on all the playing skill. They may hog a lot of hands that way, but their opponents usually hog the majority of plus scores.



(Dealer. North. East-West vulnerable).

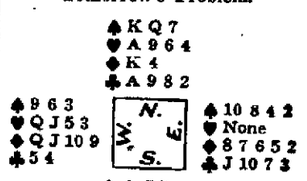
One spade was North's opening call which South took to 1-No Trump. North now bid 2-Clubs and South called 2-No Trumps. When North bid 3-Spades, South continued with no trump, but North refused to allow the contract to remain there and went 4-Spades.

North, who failed to make his contract of 4-Spades, argued that the hand seemed unsafe to him at a no trump contract because of his distribution. However, playing with a dependable partner, he should have given him credit for realizing that North's distribution was four clubs and five spades and therefore short in the other two suits.

With stoppers in the two unbid suits, a splendid fit for North's second bid suit and fair strength in the first, South was justified in trying for a no trump game. By the way, notice how 5-Clubs would have worked if South had taken out the four spades.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer. South. North-South vulnerable).

How should South plan the play of the hand to make 6-Hearts, after the lead of the diamond Q?

—Beauty—

Try Being Glamorous For Beauty

By JULIET SHELBY

(Central Press Writer on Beauty)

IT'S TIME you did something about being that luxurious and glamorous lady that you've always wanted to be.

About the easiest and most inexpensive way to accomplish this is to make a ritual of your daily bath. Make it more than a boring cleansing process,, get a real kick out of it.

A good warm bath relaxes your muscles, and is a wonderful curative for worry, excitement and nervous exhaustion. And it does more than that, it bucks you up, makes you feel like you've got a new lease on life, and also tones up the skin for the short sleeves and swim suits that you'll be donning in a few brief months.

A tip that will make the bath a combination cleanser and massage is to use a brush or a rough sponge. The old fashioned soft wash cloth is definitely out. There's nothing which cleans so thoroughly and leaves your skin so clear and satiny smooth as a brisk going over with a good bath brush. There are many different sizes and shapes on the market, but some new ones have just come out that are particularly designed for use in toe shower too. They are small spatulated brushes with a short handle which makes them ever so convenient in the restricted area of a built-in shower. And they will do their job most efficiently, even on the most unreachable portion of your back. And you don't have to be a contortionist.

Gives Massage.

The rough going-over is not only a toner, but it gets ride of those unattractive rough spots and goose pimples. The friction does it. You'll get a glow for your trouble and you skin will respond gratefully to your self-imposed massage.

If you are one who likes to top your bath off with a shower and still not lose the glamor of your scented water here's the way to do it! Put a few of your bath crystals into a piece of cheese-cloth and tie it right over the head of your shower. If you are using oil dowse some on the cheese-cloth. This will scent the water as it come down.

The cold final shower is a question of taste and temperament. If it exhilarates you by all means take it. But if it makes you shivery and unhappy, you're not the type, so leave it out.

Always dry with a big rough towel. This gives you a final gentle massage, and all you have to do is dust off the torso with a dusting powder and you are ready for fine feathers and new adventures.

SUEDE USES

Suede for coats, suits, handbags, shoes, gloves, dress trimmings, has been developed in many charming new colors this year. From faraway Egypt comes a rust color termed Egyptian clay; interest in Civil war times called out Yankee blue and cavalry red; the great outdoors inspired such hues as harvest rust, gooseberry green, wineberry, gold nugget and chestnut brown. Other favorite shades are nutmeg tan, black hawk, greyhound, buck and hockey green.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

Mary and I stiffened to attention as though we had been prodded by bayonets instead of by the sneering reference to Dicky's "shelling out coin," uttered by the man in the booth on the other side of the partition.

With the appearance of the first course of the meal, and the gusto with which they approached it, Mary and I had relaxed our watchfulness and discussed our coquillies St. Jacques with the respect and admiration the internationally-famous, toothsome dish deserves, for it was cooked and served in a manner worthy of the best Parisian cafes. We had even enjoyed, albeit a bit grimly, the distinctly hackneyed persiflage of the couple. But this taunt of the man concerning money supposed to have been given to the woman by Dicky made us "sit up and take notice" with a vengeance.

Reply Profane.

"On your toes, Auntie Madge!" Mary whispered, and making only a sorry pretense of eating, I strained my ears for the woman's reply.

But when it came it gave us no information whatever. It was simply the vehement, profane and unconvincing denial to be expected of the woman whose former conversation had revealed only too plainly the type of person she was.

"You're a d—d liar and you know it," she said emphatically, with no particular venom, however. "That bird isn't handing out any coin till he has to. And for the luv of Mike! shut your trap and let me enjoy my food, if you're too much of a tightwad to buy a drink. Hallelujah! I believe that's the first the Dicky-bird ordered coming now."

Her belief was evidently justified, for after a short interval we heard the man say:

"He's got a pretty taste in liquor. I'll say that for him. This is a little bit of all right."

"I'll say it is," the woman assented appreciatively, and then for several minutes there was silence, an interval which Mary and I devoted to our own meal after Mary had cheered me by whispering emphatically:

"That beast told the truth for once in her worthless life, I imagine. Of course, this is blackmail of some sort. Mon oncle is just the bird to stick his beak into some sort of trap—he's been headed for it all his life. But I'm sure it hasn't closed on him yet, and you can bet those two won't see a penny of his money until they play that ace they were talking about. But don't you worry another second, Dearest. I think I've got the missing strand of wool in my fingers, and I'll be able to unravel the whole vile pattern they've knitted as soon as I hear a few more details which, I hope to Allah, they spring before they leave here. So go on with your meal, Darling, only hurry a bit. We'll have to stop when they start the gabfest going again."

Her "Trump Card."

Luckily, we had devoured part of our main dish, and by "hurrying a bit" we came up to our coffee and crepes suzettes before we heard anything more from the other side of the partition. Then the voices sounded again, at first a mere murmur, then becoming louder until words were distinguishable.

"You've never told me yet, Kid," the man said insinuatingly, "just how and when you're going to play our trump card."

"That's my own little secret," the woman replied, and it was easy to detect that the first "round of drinks," for which Dicky had left the order, was affecting her strongly. We knew, from Dicky's own words to her, that she was already fortified with "plenty." "When I tell that you'll be older and balder than you are now, my bucko lad."

"Not even if I loosen up and buy you a nice little drink?" the man invited.

Mother Can Read For Improvement

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.

Head Department Parent Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

"DEAR MR. MYERS: I am a woman twenty-five, mother of three little girls. However, owing to early marriage, I did not have much education. And would like to know whether you would give me some information on a school or home study course that would give me more education. Enclosed please find self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply."

My answer: I greatly admire your zeal to improve your education. No one needs, of course, to be ashamed of having a limited amount of schooling, only ashamed if no effort is made to learn more. Every one of us should keep on learning and we can, if, like you, we really care.

You happen to live in a city which has night schools; also a university one may attend almost without cost. Those not so fortunate should, in case they wished to take a correspondence course, write to the U. S. office of education, Washington, D. C., telling the kind of study desired, and asking for names and addresses of reliable correspondence schools, cost, and so on.

Read to Yourself.

But you are young, mother, and with those three little children to care for, you cannot, for several years, perhaps, have much time any energy left for formal education. Even without attending a class or taking a course by mail now, you could improve your learning at odd moments. It will help your ease and forcefulness of speech to read a great deal to your children, even from simple materials. I am sure reading fairy tales to my children when they were little improved my style.

You can read to yourself. You can borrow books without cost from your public library. How I wish more mothers would use the public library! Talk to the librarian. Tell her of your interest. She will be more than glad to advise you on a reading program.

Please do not limit your reading to fiction, and don't think you must be able to discuss the latest popular novel. Have you noticed women flocking to talks on book reviews, so they might pretend to have read a popular book and show off? Get some fact books and books that you must read reflectively, including some books on matters of home and parenthood.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, April 13.

A VERY lively and strenuous day is forecast from the ruling lunar and mutual aspects, although there may be setbacks, disputes, hostility and determined opposition to challenge the capabilities and calm judgment. Quarrels and strife, as well as impulsive and reckless tendencies, had best be translated into tact, cleverness and industry, rather than violence and fiery technique.

If This Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year in which the energies and business stamina will be challenged by open opposition, setbacks and disappointments, as well as dangers through fraud, treachery and dubious circumstances. The most successful issues will come through vigilance to fraud, hard work, shrewdness and tact, rather than reckless deeds and violent arguments or open quarrels.

A child born on this day may be energetic and enterprising, but likely to be carried to defeating heights of temper, rashness and extremes in conduct, unless it is given early training and discipline in self-control and calmness.

OBJECT TO SALESMEN

Women of Hawaii who sell flower leis to visitors to the island, don't want men to be their competitors. The gentlemen, it seems, have been horning in on the trade.

"It doesn't look nice for the men to be sling flowers," says the indignant ladies.
